21 Nations Back Priority For Truce Plan

More Changes In India Peace Proposal Seen

Majority Accord Forecast By Eden

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 25 (AP)—The United States and 20 other countries agreed today to urge priority in U. N. voting for an Indian compromise plan to end the Korean War.

This action came amid indications that more changes demanded by the United States would be made before a final vote is taken in the U. N. Political Committee, perhaps later this week.

Sir Percy Spender, Australian delegate and chairman of the group of 21 powers, announced the decision. He said it was understood also that necessary textual clarification would be sought on a major provision in the Indian resolution dealing with the final disposition of prisoners.

Eden Leaves For London

Delegates from the meeting would not comment further but American sources had said earlier today the U. S. would not agree to give the Indian plan priority over a resolution sponsored by the 21 powers unless there was agreement to accept the changes asked by the U. S.

During the meeting British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, a central figure in a split between the U. S. and Britain last week on terms of the Indian proposal, left for London by air.

He said he believed there is a good chance of agreement of the majority of the U. N. on the Indian resolution "maybe with some clarifications."

Eden said the rejection of the Indian plan by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Vishinsky yesterday should not deter the majority from trying to find peace.

U. S. Wants Time Limit

The main stumbling-block was reported to be the last paragraph on disposition of prisoners. As amended by the Indian delegation, it would leave to the U. N. the disposition of all prisoners of war in Korea who were not repatriated after five months.

The U. S. objects that this does not yet go far enough. It wants a definite time limit for release of these prisoners. Without such a time limit, the U. S. says, the prisoners may remain in camps indefinitely while East and West haggle.

Earlier today the South Koreans announced to the United Nations, Allies and the Communists alike, that they will not accept any truce or peace settlement reached without their full consent and participation.

There was little comment from delegates here but some took the view that if a truce is arranged in Korea the South Korean government will have little choice but to accept it.

Parents Dead, Tots Keep Vigil

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25 (AP)—Police today found three young children sitting on the floor of their East Baltimore home by the bodies of their parents, pleading for "mommy" to wake up.

Officers said the youngsters had kept the infinitely futile vigil for more than 15 hours.

The dead couple were 29-year-old Katherine Lang and her husband, Peter, 32.

Police said Lang apparently killed his wife with a blast from a shotgun, then turned the weapon on himself.

The bodies were discovered by Mrs. Ann Santmyer, a sister-in-law, who came to call.

The children were in the front room on the floor, dressed in their night clothes, she said.

"Mommy's asleep upstairs," one of the boys whispered.

A sheet was found in bed with a long over her. She was dressed in her night clothes and a baby's bottle was in the bed beside her.

The dead man was lying in the doorway dressed in his shorts.

Meany, New AFL Boss, Bids For CIO Reunion

Former Plumber Succeeds Green

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—George Meany, stocky 58-year-old former plumber, today became president of the American Federation of Labor, and his first act was to renew a merger bid to the CIO.

Meany expressed confidence that the nation's two big union organizations could sit down and bury their past differences to work out a merger satisfactory to both.

A veteran union leader with 30 years in various labor posts, Meany was unanimously selected by the AFL's 14-member Executive Council to succeed the late William Green as the AFL's president. Green died last Friday after serving more than a quarter century as the AFL's top leader.

Schnitzler Succeeds Meany

Meany had been the AFL's secretary-treasurer under Green and during the past several years of Green's declining health, had been the major leader of the AFL's eight million members.

Named by the AFL council to succeed Meany as secretary-treasurer was William F. Schnitzler, 46, of Chicago, president of the AFL Bakery and Confectionery Workers union.

The team of Meany and Schnitzler brings a more youthful set of leaders to the big AFL organization. Many more prominent and older labor leaders were passed up to give the AFL second spot to Schnitzler.

Rieve Welcomes Proposal

Meany's proposal for a reunion of the labor giants drew a friendly response from Emil Rieve, senior vice president of the CIO. Rieve said in New York: "I welcome his optimism about unity between the CIO and the AFL and I hope his optimism will bring satisfactory results." Rieve is president of the Textile Workers of America.

The bid for renewed merger negotiations with the CIO comes at a time when the smaller and newer labor organization also is changing officers. CIO leaders are meeting in Atlantic City, N. J., beginning Friday to select a president to succeed the late Philip Murray. He died Nov. 9.

Karl Svab, former deputy minister of national security, and Lt. Gen. Bedrich Reicin, former deputy defense minister, took the stand before the Prague purge court and completed a stream of confessions that began with the opening of the trial last Thursday. All 14 now have volubly pleaded guilty.

Svab, one of the three non-Jews in the accused group, said in accounts broadcast by the Prague radio that the traitors were uncovered only with his arrest with other "Zionist, Trotskyite and bourgeois nationalist" followers of Rudolf Slansky.

Reicin, one of the 11 Jews, followed Svab to the stand and was quoted as making a similar confession that "Zionists and traitors" had held high post in the nation's defense.

The chief defendants are Slansky, former Communist boss of Czechoslovakia and former Foreign Minister Vlado Clementis accused of treason, sabotage and espionage against President Klement Gottwald's government.

32 Planes Searching For Lost Globemaster

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Nov. 25

—Thirty-two Air Force and Navy planes took off today with improving weather in the search for an Alaska-bound C-124 Globemaster plane missing since Saturday night with 52 men aboard.

Clouds still hung close to glacial peaks in the rugged mountainous area to the south and southeast of here over which much of the 5,000 square mile search has centered, but were expected to lift during the day.

Highways In Midwest Area Blocked By Near Blizzard

(By The Associated Press)

A blinding, wind-lashed snowstorm blocked highways in the Central Plains area Tuesday night and drove into the Upper Mississippi Valley.

Traffic was tied up in Western Kansas and Central and Eastern Nebraska as the near blizzard reduced visibility virtually to zero. The Weather Bureau reported winds of 35 to 45 miles per hour accompanied the snow in the Plains region, piling drifts across roads.

The snow drove northward from the Texas Panhandle where Borger reported an accumulation of 11 inches. It brought stinging cold winds from Dahlhart to the Gulf Coast, cutting off a three-day rain which ended the long Texas drought.

Winds drifted the snow over panhandle highways, and the blowing kept airport operations stalled at Borger, Amarillo and Pampa.

At Chicago, the Weather Bureau issued a special snow warning for Minnesota. It predicted 5 to 10 inches of snowfall during the night and Wednesday in Minnesota.

Join Ike's High Command

President-elect Dwight Eisenhower yesterday named two women to high government posts and selected Arthur E. Summerfield (center), chairman of the Republican National Committee, as postmaster general. Eisenhower appointed Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby (right), a Democrat and original director of the Women's Army Corps, as administrator of the Federal Security Agency, and Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest (left), Bountiful, Utah, as treasurer of the United States.

Foundation Gave Lattimore Grant, Prober Charges

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Rep. Cox (D-Ga.) said today Owen Lattimore, former State Department adviser, obtained large sums of money from the multimillion-dollar Rockefeller Foundation and the money was used "for subversive purposes."

The Georgia legislator, chairman of a special House inquiry committee, also said the Rockefeller Foundation and other tax-exempt groups made "a great number of grants" to persons disloyal to the United States.

In New York, Dean Rusk, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, commented: "The Rockefeller Foundation has reported the facts on these grants to the Cox committee in our reply to the questionnaire sent us by the committee."

Ready To Discuss Cases

"We are prepared to discuss any cases fully when we go before the committee," Cox stated before the committee about foundation grants to disloyal persons drew a quick rebuttal from Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, associate director of the Ford Foundation, who told the committee:

"I am perfectly certain that no major foundation has ever consciously gone into anything that would weaken the American system."

The House group is investigating whether any tax-free organizations have used their huge financial resources to aid un-American or subversive activities.

Cox asserted that Lattimore, a Johns Hopkins University professor and expert on Far East affairs, "succeeded in getting a great deal of money" from the Rockefeller Foundation "which was used for subversive purposes."

The committee's chairman said the Rockefeller grant to Lattimore was channeled through the Institute of Pacific Relations (IPR), which has figured in repeated congressional inquiries "into alleged Communist infiltration in the government."

Lattimore has similarly been a frequent target of Senate and House investigations dealing with subversion, and was accused by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) of being the Kremlin's No. 1 agent in this country. Lattimore has vigorously denied any Communist affiliations.

Maj. Matthew Standhope, Whiteville, N. C., arrested Cascio in Korea on Sept. 21 after an investigation dating back to the first week in August but the arrest was announced only Tuesday.

Standhope said files were included in material Cascio is charged with plotting to sell.

"In my opinion he would have to be intelligent to do the work he did," said Standhope.

Second Soldier Sent To U. S.

A second soldier was arrested at the same time, but was sent to the United States without being charged after a medical examination.

After keeping mum about the case for two months, the Air Force disclosed Tuesday that Cascio was formally charged with "conspiring to give intelligence to the enemy." No date has been set for court-martial.

The Air Force charged Cascio "did wrongfully offer for sale to unauthorized persons a classified military writing, to wit: A message classified as secret containing flight test data on F-86E type aircraft with reason to believe said writing would reach the enemy."

Trumans Invite Adlai Stevenson To Formal Dinner

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson has been invited to a formal dinner that President and Mrs. Truman will give the night of Dec. 4 for members of the Cabinet.

Mrs. James Helm, White House social secretary, told reporters of the invitation today. She said that in addition to the Illinois governor and Cabinet members, invitations have gone to "some former Cabinet members." She declined to name them.

Truman told a news conference last Thursday that Stevenson, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for president, was coming to Washington about Dec. 1 and that he expected to see the Illinois governor. He said he would offer Stevenson his co-operation in reorganizing the Democratic Party.

Fast Work Kept GI From Selling U. S. Jet Secrets

TOKYO, Wednesday, Nov. 26 (AP)—Painstaking work by Air Force investigators prevented Staff Sgt. Giuseppe Cascio, a photo laboratory technician accused of plotting to deal with the enemy, from selling secret data on improved Sabre jets, the Air Force said Tuesday.

The sergeant, a squat 34-year-old Tucson, Ariz., airman who twice won the Distinguished Flying Cross as a bombardier in World War II, was being held by authorities, probably in Japan.

He faces a maximum penalty of life imprisonment if found guilty of the charges—first of their kind involving an American since the start of the Korean War.

Seized Sept. 21 In Korea

A headquarters announcement said that investigators had prevented Cascio from actually transmitting any secret information.

As a photo laboratory technician and occasional photographer with the 49th Air Base Group in Korea, he presumably had access to much information.

Maj. Matthew Standhope, Whiteville, N. C., arrested Cascio in Korea on Sept. 21 after an investigation dating back to the first week in August but the arrest was announced only Tuesday.

Standhope said files were included in material Cascio is charged with plotting to sell.

"In my opinion he would have to be intelligent to do the work he did," said Standhope.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—A former Illinois farm boy, Clifford F. Hood of Pittsburgh, today was elected president of the nation's largest steel producer, United States Steel Corp., effective Jan. 1.

Putnam Urges 14-Month Extension Of Government's Controls Power

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam has recommended that the government's power to control prices and wages be extended 14 months beyond the present April 30 deadline, it was learned today.

In fact, officials said, Putnam is seeking somewhat stronger control powers than provided under present laws.

At the same time, the White House discounted a report from Sen. Maybank (D-SC) that he had information President Truman might end price-wage controls before Congress convenes Jan. 3.

Roger Tubby, acting presidential press secretary, said Truman has no such plans.

Simultaneously, outgoing Price Stabilizer Tighe E. Woods suspended price ceilings on all women's and misses' clothing, effective at once.

The Office of Price Stabilization indicated ceilings will be suspended by this weekend on men's and young men's apparel also—but not on infants' and children's wear, which is selling at or near ceiling prices. Market prices have been running well under ceilings on the clothing being decontrolled.

Former OPS Director Michael V. DiSalle was en route to Washington from Ohio to discuss the controls situation with Truman and, it was understood, to add his support for the retention of ceilings.

There was speculation that Truman might ask DiSalle, defeated Democratic candidate for the Senate, to take over again as OPS director at least temporarily. DiSalle told a reporter at Toledo he had not been offered the job, which Woods will vacate on Dec. 1, and was not interested in it.

Woods announced last night he was quitting. He said he was fed up with administering what he termed the "weak law" given him by Congress.

Mobilization officials disclosed that Stabilizer Putnam has recommended the extension to June 30, 1954, of price, wage and rent control authority. Putnam, however, was said to feel that the power might not be used that long.

Putnam's proposals were delivered some days ago to Defense Mobilization Director Henry H. Fowler, to be considered in Fowler's recommendations for new legislation.

FT. HOOD, Tex., Nov. 25 (AP)—Capt. Stanley L. Martyniak and Lt. Mcke W. Tipples, past finance officers, discovered their palms always itched after payday.

Medical officers said that the two were allergic to money. "It's probably the ink in the bills," a doctor said.

Government Press Agent Study Urged By Ramspeck

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Robert S. Ramspeck, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, today called for a complete, non-political study of the work of government information men.

His suggestion came during a panel discussion on whether information men really are special pleaders for the "ins."

Ramspeck said it now is impossible to say whether it's proper or improper for a department head to advocate at the taxpayer's expense—a program he would like adopted.

His own view, Ramspeck said, is that it's improper. He said he thinks it would have been better to have had the Democratic Party, rather than the government, finance arguments for the so-called Brannan farm plan, named for the secretary of agriculture.

W. Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post, insisted the main problem is getting more information about the government. "We have a current need for information about the government," he said, "that exceeds the need of any other time."

Summerfield Chosen Head Of Postal Dept.

Mrs. Oveta Hobby Will Direct FSA

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower today named two women to high government posts and chose Arthur E. Summerfield, chairman of the Republican National Committee, as postmaster general.

He appointed Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, a Democrat and original director of the Women's Army Corps, as administrator of the Federal Security Agency, and Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest of Bountiful, Utah, as treasurer of the United States.

Eisenhower said Mrs. Hobby had been asked to attend cabinet meetings because of "her vitally important position" in directing government social and welfare work although the post does not technically have cabinet rank.

Summerfield will resign as Republican national chairman before taking his cabinet post, it was announced. His appointment as postmaster general left two cabinet jobs still to be filled—secretary of labor and secretary of commerce.

"Outstanding Women"

Eisenhower described both Mrs. Hobby and Mrs. Priest as "outstanding women" and said their job appointments were the "first of other appointments of women in the coming administration."

"I am honored to have them participate in the affairs of the government of the United States," he said. "I am confident that they will be worthwhile additions to the public service."

Mrs. Hobby, publisher of the Houston, Tex., Post, will succeed Oscar R. Ewing, Mrs. Priest, active in the Republican Party women's division, will succeed another woman, Georgia Neese Clark.

Summerfield will replace Jesse M. Donaldson.

The appointments were announced shortly after Rep. John Taber of New York, known as a "watchdog" of federal expenses, came out of Eisenhower's office with a prediction that government expenses could be trimmed by $15 billion in 1954.

$65 Billion Budget Held Possible

Taber estimated they could be held to $65 billion, with a balanced budget and a possible slight tax reduction. The present budget is $79 billion.

The white-haired New York congressman conferred with John Foster Dulles and Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire, designated respectively as secretary of state and assistant to the president in Eisenhower's forthcoming Republican administration.

Taber said a reduction of expenditures to the $65 billion vicinity depended on cutting military and mutual security outlays and elimination of waste in government.

The congressman advocated a streamlining of personnel in the State Department's overseas offices and its Voice of America division.

California Crime Empire Smashed

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23 (AP)—Police cleaned up a statewide crime organization with arrests in three cities today, a few hours after the gang leader shot it out with detectives in a dramatic running gun battle and then killed himself to avoid capture.

Guns blazed in corridors and stairways of an apartment hotel last night as officers pursued Richard K. Franklin, 40, released from San Quentin only last August. Franklin, wounded five times, finally put an end to the chase by firing a bullet into his head.

Under arrest are nine men and two women, suspects in "the perfect crime organization" of which Franklin boasted, officers said. Three of the suspects were arrested in Stockton and one in San Francisco.

Det. S. R. McCaleb said the gang specialized in market, bar and liquor store banditry, chiefly in the San Francisco area until a month ago, when Franklin came down here to recruit fresh accomplices. In Southern California they pulled about six "substantial" holdups—$3,000 to $4,000 each—said McCaleb. The full list has not been compiled.

J. Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post, insisted the main problem is getting more information about the government. "We have a current need for information about the government," he said, "that exceeds the need of any other time."

Soviets Finally Accept Bible, Gift For Joe Stalin

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 25 (AP)—Bibles for Joseph Stalin and Andrei Y. Vishinsky finally got delivered today at the Soviet diplomatic mission.

Two pastors, with the Russian-language Bibles in hand, got a day-long run-around before their gifts were accepted.

They never actually tagged Vishinsky, the Soviet foreign minister who is here as chief Russian delegate to the U. N. Assembly, but a mission aide said he would see that Vishinsky got the books.

Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux, radio preacher, and Pastor Basil A. Malof, refugee Russian Protestant minister, asked Vishinsky in an accompanying letter to give Stalin one. They underlined the Sermon on the Mount and asked the Russians to accept it as a "platform of peace."

In their pursuit of Vishinsky, they went to the Soviet mission on Park Avenue and were told he was at the U. N.; when they came here they were told he was back at the mission. Then they settled for delivery through the mission aide.

They also left Bibles at the U. N. for Secretary-General Trygve Lie and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, an American delegate.

Heading an organization called the Bible Sponsoring Association, the two pastors said they had several thousand Russian Bibles already printed and hoped to get them behind the Iron Curtain.

Roads Program Will Insure Good System For 25 Years

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25 (AP)—The Maryland Roads Commission promised today its half-billion-dollar 12-year highway program will set up a system good for a quarter of a century.

It also promised to ask all the authority it needs to control access to its new highways to aid in keeping them in good working order.

Chairman Russell S. McCain, appearing before the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council, went over in detail how the state plans to build or rebuild 3,450 miles of Maryland highways over 12 years.

The long range project will cost $568,255,000 and will mean an increase in gasoline taxes and automobile registration fees.

McCain made his estimate of the future of the highways after Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th) asked if "after the outlay of all this money we will find our roads obsolete in a few years?"

The chairman assured the committee members that surveys have projected the needs of various areas of the state and plans have been made to insure adequate traffic conditions for 20, 25 or 30 years.

In the discussion, McCain noted the commission is asking the Legislature to revise the law to give it more control of access to the new roads. Access control means allowing vehicles to get on and off main highways only at designated intersections.

McCain agreed with Robinson it might be well to have power to declare certain road sections as parkways and deny them to commercial vehicles. Right now, however, that could apply only to the new Baltimore-Washington expressway, since it is the only one with an alternate truck route.

Bodies Of Five Plane Crash Victims Found

EDGEWOOD, Md., Nov. 25 (AP)—The Air Force today found the remaining bodies of five crewmen killed yesterday when their four-engine B-50 bomber crashed into the water off the Army Chemical Center here on a test flight.

Meantime, it started the process of organizing a board of inquiry to investigate the crash.

The body of Capt. Amandus J. Boyle of Queen Anne, Md., the navigator-bombardier, was found floating in Bush River shortly after noon today. The body of one victim was found south after the crash and the other three were recovered overnight.

LONDON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Ava Gardner's well publicized case of dysentery is on the mend tonight after a day of rest and quiet, plus dieting and hypodermic shots.

Boy, 9, In Coma For Six Years

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 25 (AP)—Danny Neil Lissal celebrated his ninth birthday quietly yesterday. You see, Danny has been unconscious for six years now.

The boy, somewhat thinner than the chubby lad who was struck by a car in front of his home in Hamilton, O., back in 1946, just lies in his bed at Broadview Hospital, Columbus State School.

Occasionally Danny opens his eyes. He doesn't react to anything. He even had measles some time ago and didn't know it.

"He's just about the same as when he came to us," said Dr. Roger Gove, superintendent of Columbus State School.

Millionaire's Home Raided By 70 Baboons

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Nov. 25 (AP)—Seventy baboons raided the holiday home of British Millionaire Yachtsman T. O. M. Sopwith at Hermanus over the weekend and did a lot of damage.

One intruder wandered into a servants' room where he was tackled by a native boy wielding a chair. The animal picked up the boy—chair and all—and hurled him through a window.

Baboons tore colored tiles from the roof and threw them at the servants, who finally scared off the invaders.

St. John's Students Plan Rebuilding Fund After $60,000 Blaze

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 25 (AP)—St. John's College students pitched in to help clean up the wreckage in fire-damaged McDowell Hall today and immediately began a campaign to raise money to pay for damages to the 208-year-old building.

The blaze, which started in the book storage room of the historic structure, did an estimated $50,000 to $60,000 in damages, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds Archibald McCourt said. He said the fire was apparently started by defective wiring.

The students, many of whom helped fight the fire early this morning and carry out valuable property, organized a McDowell Hall Rebuilding Fund to solicit funds for restoration.

Executive Emergency Pool Plans Launched

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—President Truman today started plans for a reserve pool of key executives in private industry whose services might be needed by the government in an emergency.

He asked the Civil Service Commission to draw up a roster of officials "at the earliest practicable date." In a letter to Commission Chairman Robert Ramspeck, the President said:

"We are all acutely aware of the importance of skilled personnel in a period of rapid mobilization. The success of defense mobilization efforts depends in very large measure upon the leadership and participation of persons recruited from private life for public service."

How To Save Time, But Is It Worthwhile?

As I was shaving the other morning, I got to thinking how much time a man could save during his lifetime by letting his beard grow — in the case of those with 5 o'clock shadows, who have to mow their whiskers twice daily, double the amount. When I began to add it up, the rough total astounded me.

On the other hand, I began to consider its disadvantages. The best ideas always come to me when in front of the mirror scraping my face. I thought how silly most men would look with a beard. Many believed Charles Evans Hughes would have been elected in 1916 if clean shaven. Very few women can vote for a beaver, even for President not alone for a husband. Then what would become of the boys who make shaving creams and razors and the agencies which advertise them and radio and television? We'd all go broke sooner or later and fall into the laps of the Bolsheviks. Most of them never heard of Gillette, anyway.

Later, I began to consider how much time women would save if they gave up lip rouge, eyebrow pencils and other artificial beautifiers, but that, too, seemed like a dim outlook. The cosmetic firms would go out of business, and much beauty down the drain. Have you ever seen an oldish glamor girl without makeup? After due deliberation, I decided the whole project wasn't worth-while and should be abandoned. I favor status quo.

Speaking of beauty, years ago I used to know a man who had worked on the New York World, until he became prosperous as president of a whisky company. As some chorus girls of that day made their reputations by being dumb, so my friend made his by being able to pick the homeliest dames unintentionally. One Saturday noon he called up an old friend on the staff to ask him to come to his office and go to lunch with a couple of young ladies. Knowing his reputation, the other replied,

"Sorry, I can't do it, Buck. I have too much on hand."

"On the level," said the other, "these two are beauts. You ought to see them. Get on your bicycle and ride over here right away. If you don't like their looks when you come in, just say to me."

"Where are those papers?"

He was finally persuaded to explore the situation and arrived promptly. He took one look at exhibit A and shouted:

"Buck, for heaven's sake where are THEM papers?"

He returned to the World office and reported to his colleagues that Buck's title was intact. He was still champion.

Finally, this item deals with a quick-thinking judge. A pickpocket came before him for sentence, and, after hearing the evidence, his honor said,

"I fine you $50."

"But I've only got $40," replied the prisoner.

His lawyer spoke up with a solution.

"Turn him loose in the courtroom here for 10 minutes, and he'll get the rest," he suggested.

Lay Those Comics Down

Lay aside that comic book, boy, and start shopping around for a space suit. Come another 10 or 15 years, space travel of sorts may be a reality, and you'll be grown up by then.

Who says so? Not the comic book publishers. They are less optimistic.

The fellow who sees the beginnings of space travel by 1967 or sooner is a topflight rocket expert, Dr. Werner von Braun, who directed the development of the German V-2 rocket and is now technical director of the U. S. Guided Missile Development Group in Huntsville, Ala.

His prediction is bold, because it is subject to early verification, but in another sense it is cautious. He does not predict any space-time, faster-than-light jumps to other galaxies in the early future, or even to other planets. What he foresees is a mere space station—an artificial satellite 1,000 miles up, circling the earth almost 12 times a day.

Such a station, he believes, is a sober possibility on the basis of what is known now or can soon be worked out in applying existing knowledge.

To start with, such a station would probably resemble a wheel the size of a small skyscraper, slowly rotating about its hub, inhabited inside its rim by 80 or 100 human beings possessing mass, but not weight.

The remainder of the wheel would be occupied by "the most fantastic laboratory ever devised." Once established, the space station would be a source of further out-reaching scientific study, and it could be enlarged to serve as filling station, garage and take-off point for subsequent expeditions to the moon—the next stop.

Forty Thousand Tons

Off Lewes, Del., during the War of 1812 a British ship fired some cannonballs into the village. The range was too great for much effect and the only casualties were some pigs and chickens. The story is that the Lewestowners picked up some of the balls before they stopped rolling—and fired 'em back at HMS Roebuck.

Modern warfare doesn't work that way. The shell spent in the ammo fired at the Korean Reds stays spent. There is no salvage or recovery possible. The fact most persons will find amazing is the tremendous quantity of ammunition being used by the Eighth Army in Korea, 40,000 tons a month. That's as much every day as any of Eisenhower's armies fired on the peak days of offensive fighting in World War II.

In the trade magazine Steelways, George Fielding Elliott points out this is expended "just in support of patrol and outpost actions and sporadic minor combats." It does not include the steel in the bombs or rockets poured on the Reds by the Air Force and the Navy. Much of the ammunition used in the first year of fighting in Korea was left over from World War II. Production facilities had not been maintained—and it takes 15 months to convert a big machine shop to making 105-mm shells.

Machine tools are still a bottleneck. But shell cases are being made of steel now, instead of scarce copper. A combat lieutenant can call for three tons of hot steel a minute if his platoon needs it for an advance. In Korea it's firepower against manpower. This nation can never match Communist manpower. It has to look sharp as to firepower.

Scrambled Egg

Britain's Conservative government is determined to denationalize the steel industry—and it seems as if it will have the votes to do it. The Labor party will fight hard to prevent it but it will have a hard time preventing this ascent from the morass of socialism.

One of the strongest arguments advanced against socialism over the years is that, once adopted, it is difficult to unscramble the rotten egg. It has been pointed out many times that when the tools of production are taken from private owners individuals with the wealth and the knowledge required to buy and use these tools will disappear. Thus there will be no way to get back to private enterprise—no way to separate the yolk and the white again.

The argument fits Britain's steel industry, now government-owned, only to a degree. The degree is limited because nationalization became effective only a little more than a year and a half ago and management personnel stayed on. So, if the former owners can be induced to buy back their shares in the industry, the remainder of the problem should be comparatively simple.

There are difficulties, though. Some of the companies are more successful than others and their stocks should be in demand. But what about those that are losing money? And how can investors be convinced that it is prudent to risk their capital in an industry that must run not only all the normal hazards but be exposed to nationalization again if the Socialists get back to power?

They Didn't Read It

As a prime example of bureaucratic bungling it would be hard to beat the story which recently came out of Germany. There, it was revealed, American authorities have spent nearly $50,000 to finance a textbook on world history written by a Communist and heavily loaded with Red propaganda.

How did it happen? Well, the U. S. government had set aside a fund to provide new textbooks for German schools and colleges free of Nazi propaganda. Arno Peters, the man assigned to do this particular textbook, was highly vouched for. Four German state education ministers and a number of professors endorsed the history without actually seeing the full manuscript.

The U. S. High Commission explains that its education branch was reduced from 86 persons, when the book was ordered, to only two when it was delivered. Apparently these two couldn't read.

It is difficult to imagine any private publisher risking nearly $50,000 of his firm's money on a book without carefully reading it himself or having it read by one of the top members of his staff. Certainly he wouldn't wait until the money had been spent and the book printed to read it to see whether the book was any good.

Is it any wonder that American taxpayers complain that their money is being wasted and that other peoples are often inclined to think of Americans as the prize suckers of all time?

The Driver Who "Gets Mad"

The most important part of any automobile is the driver. His safety record is influenced by his physical condition, his emotional stability, and his attitude toward others on the road. These factors are difficult to evaluate when passing our drivers' tests but they play one of the most important roles in traffic accidents.

Any city dweller who travels between home and work during the rush hour is bound to come up against a variety of driver personalities. The worst is the young man whose temper flares up on being cut off or beaten to the draw at a stoplight. He'll "get even with that so and so" and away he goes, endangering not only his own life but also the lives of others. Many men lose their tempers when they try to pass someone who is straddling the white line, over on the wrong side of the road, and otherwise ignoring safety precautions or ordinary courtesy. When this occurs, some drivers act like spoiled children and anger makes them lose all sense of judgment. They too are menaces on the street or highway.

Of the men and women who pass us up going 60 or by darting in and out of traffic, it is difficult to say how many were upset a mile back by a truck or by something that happened at home or in the office before they even entered their car. The relationship between accident and behavior becomes clearer when we realize the frequency of traffic mishaps in the late afternoon and early evening. Between 4 and 7 p. m. is the time of day when most employed persons are going home, over the same road they took eight hours earlier. At the end of the day it is natural to be weary and impatient and, in addition, visibility is poor, especially during the winter months. The only way to stay out of the "accident when going home club" is to curb that belligerent attitude, slow up, and stay well behind the car ahead.

The physical condition of the person behind the wheel also influences safety. Nowadays driving offers many hazards even to the healthy individual. The man with advanced heart trouble, arteriosclerosis, high blood pressure, visual deficiencies, and lesions of the nervous system is still more vulnerable. This phase of driving never has received adequate consideration and many physicians seldom consider this part when discussing the dos and don'ts with their patients. This was brought home to me not long ago when a former patient told me that when she reached 65 her insurance company would no longer carry her automobile accident policies. The reason given was that she was in an age bracket when accidents were more prone to occur. She obtained a policy from another company but her experience may mark the beginning of a new trend. The worst driving record is held by the 18-24 age group. What would happen if all insurance companies refused to issue policies to the owner of any car that is to be driven by young men and women in the teens and early 20s?

Much has been written about mixing alcohol with driving but, according to the Travelers Insurance company, it is not the staggering drunk who gets into trouble but the man who has had one or two. He looks harmless yet feels like doing 90 because he is king of the road.

MANY NERVES

L. C. writes: Tell me in plain words what means chronic polyneuritis.

REPLY

Chronic means persistent; poly refers to many; and neuritis, inflammation of a nerve. The complete term denotes a painful condition of several nerves that is not responding to treatment.

X-RAYING CORNS

C. M. writes: Can corns on the toes be removed permanently by X-rays?

REPLY

X-ray therapy is effective but this is drastic treatment. Moreover, corns are likely to return if pressure is not relieved. This means that better fitting shoes must be worn.

IMPETIGO

H. J. writes: Is penicillin or any other antibiotic helpful in clearing up impetigo?

REPLY

Impetigo is caused by various organisms, chiefly staphylococci and streptococci. A variety of treatments also are used, including all the better known antibiotics.

NUMB LIMBS

D. T. writes: If a person awakens with numbness of the right arm and leg but without loss of reflexes is this likely to be a stroke?

REPLY

The physician who tested the reflexes is the best one to decide this point. Numbness of one arm and leg occurs occasionally when a brain artery goes into a state of spasm temporarily.

Senator Morse Invites Income Tax Inspection; Oregonian Startles Internal Revenue Chiefs; House Investigators Would Bear Investigation

WASHINGTON — Oregon's independent Sen. Wayne Morse paid an unusual call on the Bureau of Internal Revenue the other day. Most people fight shy of this tax collecting agency; some people get heart failure when its agents even telephone.

But the Oregon senator ambled down to the bureau and said he wanted to meet with the officials who were running it. Accordingly, Harold Swartz, acting assistant commissioner, sat down with him, plus David Gatzert and Frank Cohen of the chief counsel's office, plus E. L. McLarny and Leonard Boyd of the audit division.

"I would like to ask the Bureau of Internal Revenue," Senator Morse told them, "to make a careful audit of my income tax returns."

The tax officials couldn't believe their ears. The bureau makes it an unwritten rule not to look too closely at the tax returns of members of Congress. So for a senator to come in and ask for an audit was revolutionary.

Morse went on to explain that, when he was elected to the Senate in 1945, he had a campaign deficit of about $16,000 which had been paid partly by him, partly by contributions from friends; and that recently Oregon politicians had been circulating charges that the handling of this deficit had violated the tax laws.

He said the money was not paid to him, and he was certain the tax laws had not been violated. But to make sure, he asked that his tax returns be thoroughly audited.

"But we can't audit them prior to 1949," said Assistant Commissioner Swartz. "The Statute of Limitations has expired."

"Then I'll waive the Statute of Limitations," Morse said.

"You'll what?" asked Swartz incredulously. "Well, we'll have to have written authorization for that."

"You'll get it," replied Morse, who promptly went back to his office and wrote a letter to Acting Commissioner John S. Graham, which stated:

"I respectfully request that you consider this letter as being my official request for an audit of my income tax returns since I have been in the Senate, starting with the 1945 returns."

NOTE—When this columnist in 1946 suggested to Senator Morse that members of Congress and all top governments file a statement of outside fees received, income from law practice, stocks and commodities purchased, he immediately introduced a bill to this effect. Had it passed, the Nixon fund would have been required to be registered so the public could know about it before Nixon's nomination to the important office of vice president.

Lame-duck Senator McFarland of Arizona is planning a final fling at the taxpayers' expense. He is making arrangements for a round-the-world trip during his last month as senator. . . . Senator Ferguson of Michigan is so anxious to take over the Senate Appropriations Committee that he can't wait. He is second to Senator Bridges of New Hampshire in seniority. But, if Bridges accepts the job of majority leader, there's a chance he will be too busy to head the Appropriations Committee too. So Ferguson has been pestering Bridges' office to find out whether he is giving up the Appropriations chairmanship. . . . Secretary of Defense Lovett has invited his successor, Charles E. Wilson, to attend the North Atlantic Pact conference in Paris Dec. 15. . . . General Eisenhower has invited Army Chief of Staff General Collins to fly to Korea with him—after Collins hinted broadly for an invitation. . . . President Truman is pleading with defense boss Joe Fowler not to quit until Ike is inaugurated. The President wants the mobilization program going full steam when Ike takes over. . . . Eisenhower will appoint a special commission, headed by Vannevar Bush, to study the reorganization of the Defense Department. . . . Senator Lodge of Massachusetts has told friends he won't be in the cabinet but will probably serve as an assistant president and trouble shooter.

Strange Investigators
Penny-pinchers John Taber, new GOP boss of the House Appropriations Committee, will follow like a wounded bull when he hears it, but two of his investigators have gone on a spending spree in Europe and Africa. They are John Donnelly and Tim Donovan, who were supposed to investigate air base scandals in North Africa. However, their military liaison man, Lt. Com. J. D. Paxson, reported back to the Pentagon that the two investigators were gallivanting around Switzerland—a country where there are no air bases to investigate. Commander Paxson also complained that the investigators had run through $2,500 expense money in less than a month. This money was put up by the Defense Department from a special fund for congressional investigations.

On top of this, Donnelly had demanded that the investigators be permitted to inspect top-secret documents. This was denied until a routine check could be made of Congressman Taber's investigators. When Donnelly raised a fuss, however, a temporary clearance was granted. Later, the Defense Department's check on the investigators revealed that Tim Donovan had once been convicted of forgery, had jumped parole, spent another 60 days in jail for drunken driving. Yet he reported on his application that he had never been convicted of a crime.

So the Defense Department revoked Donovan's temporary clearance.

Reporters asked him confidentially who his candidate was to succeed Trygve Lie. "How about me?" Acheson said with a grin. "I'll be out of a job in January." . . . If Trygve Lie goes through with his plans to resign, it's more likely that the new secretary-general will be Nasrullah Entezam, former Iranian ambassador to Washington. . . . John Foster

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — President Truman said the other day that General Eisenhower was "appalled" when he learned the inside story of the problems facing the nation—but it turns out that it wasn't their enormity or serious nature which "appalled" the President-elect. It was the "mess" in which he found the relations of the United States with the rest of the world.

This deterioration in public policy, if known to the public, would "appall" the American people and, in due time, as Congress delves into the subject, much of the truth will come out.

Briefly it means that the absence of firm policies, the lack of responsibility at top levels, the incompetence of certain personnel charged with important duties have all left in their wake an international mess that will not be cleaned up overnight.

This doesn't mean that the situation is acutely critical or that what has been lost is irretrievable. It merely means that men and policies have failed. To remedy the situation it is important to select good men and make new policies.

The chief defect on the policy-making side has been the tendency to improvise on a day-to-day basis rather than on a long-range basis. General Eisenhower and the man he has designated for secretary of State believe in careful planning on a long-range basis.

Inconsistent Policies
Many of the difficulties in our relations with other countries are due to inconsistencies and short-term steps and sudden shifts which make it impossible for other nations to understand clearly what the United States is driving at.

The Eisenhower administration is determined that there be a revision of American world policies so that other governments will have a clear-cut understanding of American purposes.

Among the things that stand out today is the deterioration in the European situation, especially on the continent in connection with NATO matters. When General Eisenhower was in command he operated on a broad basis with the leaders of other governments. General Ridgway, his successor in the NATO setup, has moved along conventional lines just as a military commander might ordinarily do. This has meant a neglect of some all-important relationships with other governments in Europe on the policy level. It is being pointed out here that the way General Ridgway has operated has been in accordance with his instructions and that no criticism can be made of him for his acts of omission. But criticism can be leveled, nevertheless, at the officials here who failed to sense the way in which things were drifting abroad.

There are other things at which the President-elect was "appalled" when he talked with President Truman and his aides. One of them was the discovery that much of the planning for Korea has been on the basis of a continued stalemate there instead of a possible attack by the Communists. The question of supplies and equipment and munitions for a strong defensive attitude also was raised. On an overall basis, the President-elect did not find some of these things to his liking, and mostly because he thought they should have been done better.

So the answer lies in better men and better policies. So far as men are concerned, friends of the President-elect who are in a position to know his mind are saying forthrightly that he wants the best men in the foreign service to stay on and continue their careers. He wants to preserve real ability wherever he finds it. At the same time, he wants to give the men of ability a better chance to have their policy proposals considered. He has an idea that some of the men who know best the complicated situations abroad have not been allowed to advance their proposals or give their advice freely at opportune moments.

Both Men Confident

There have been stories emanating from the administration about how grim the situation is and how unprepared General Eisenhower is to meet it. That was the impression Mr. Truman and his advisers sought to convey. But the fact is the President-elect knows Europe better than most people in the Truman administration, and his associate, John Foster Dulles, knows the Far East better than anybody in the present government. Both men are absolutely confident they can deal with the situation. The only regret is that there has been such a drifting, leaderless, rudderless and at times purposeless expression of the American attitude so that foreign governments have gotten the feeling the United States Government doesn't know what it wants or what it is doing.

Perhaps it will take months to clean up the mess and the confusion, but in due time the foreign governments will learn that the United States has a definite policy and a program, and that America isn't going to spend its billions in the hopeless task of buying goodwill, but means to proceed on the more hopeful premise that an alliance involves a responsible obligation which is mutual and not one-sided.

The details of what President Truman and General Eisenhower said to each other probably will never become known, but the psychological impression created upon the mind of the President-elect has become known to his friends. The general was "appalled" it is true—but not as Mr. Truman used the word. He was "appalled" that so little had been done on so many things that should have been done long ago.

These Days

GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Department Of Justice

I note that "The Washington Post" wishes to revive the Presidential commission to investigate internal security and individual rights. Mr. Truman had appointed such a commission headed by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz which came to nothing. "The Washington Post" takes advantage of this discussion to sidetrack Senator Pat McCarran in the following words: ". . . (The Nimitz commission) functioning was frustrated by Senator McCarran, the powerful head of the Senate Judiciary Committee and the self-appointed grand arbiter of loyalty and security. He blocked legislation passed by the House exempting commission members from the conflict-of-interest statutes."

The McCarran Committee, now to be headed by Senator Homer Ferguson, has worked out the pattern of subversion in our government. While Senator McCarthy made charges, the McCarran Committee understood why any American newspaper would attack those who serve America.

Most congressional investigations would have been unnecessary had the FBI been permitted to perform its proper functions. Between Harlan Stone and James McGranery, the attorneys general ignored the FBI, its capacity to gather evidence, and the precision of its service. It is no longer a secret that the FBI was disregarded in all cases that involved subversives and spies. It was not a matter of the attorneys general being Communist or pro-Communist, which they were not; nor were they less patriotic than other Americans.

It was rather that in any administration of government, in this country or in any country, those in power develop vested interests in their own mistakes. One error leads to another.

The new attorney general, Herbert Brownell, Jr., will have a wonderful opportunity to clean up this whole sorry mess. No Presidential commissions are needed to discover what is already known, namely, that Soviet Russia has invaded our country to corrupt our own sons and daughters that they might act as preachers for our enemies.

The idea of a President's commission, so far as I can discover, was first proposed in a speech by Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Americans for Democratic Action, the Socialist party which was defeated with Adlai Stevenson in the last election. In this address, delivered in 1950, the FBI was violently attacked. It is a curious attack because it denies the function of a police organization to gather evidence against those who are actively engaged in a conspiracy to destroy the United States. Actually, the object of the speech was to destroy the FBI.

Take the instance of Frank Carter Bancroft, an American in the employ of the United Nations. He says that he is an Episcopalian minister but does not work at it. As an ordained priest, he understands the moral values of an oath. In his testimony before the McCarran Committee, he fended brilliantly with the examiners. Finally Senator Willis Smith asked him:

"Let us put the question this way: Suppose this committee or a court . . . was to say that you should answer a question, as a citizen of the United States, and Mr. Lie or somebody in proper authority at the United Nations said you should not answer it because it was contrary to the United Nations policy. Which would you obey, the United States or the United Nations?"

Mr. Bancroft replied: "Sir, I would be on the spot, and I would be very grieved that any situation would arise in which an American would have to choose loyalty between his country and a member state of which it is such an important member. I mean an international organization of which it is such an important member. I can't conceive of such a situation arising."

You would imagine that all he would have to say is that he placed his mother country first. He declined in page after page of testimony to declare for America. His excuse was that he is an international servant. He answers the usual question in the usual way:

"Senator Smith. Why do you not tell us whether or not you have been or are a Communist?" Mr. Bancroft. Because under the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, sir, I think I have the privilege not to do so, because it might incriminate me."

With such Americans at large, it would appear that the FBI needs to be strengthened and that the Department of Justice should cooperate in treating subversion as an active crime.

Something had gone awry in the dingy that controls the frambis of the "feather" device on a propeller. The Mexican ground crew struggled manfully with whatever was wrong but could not win. Then one of the crew, his nose west oil-skins glistening, moved to a shelter, picked up a phone, called one of the airlines' propeller experts in Fort Worth, listened to the man's instructions, translated same into Spanish, shouted same up to the Mexican crew working on the prop... and away we went into the wild black yonder.

"Dear John: Those poll fellows and a lot of timid commentators showed themselves to be rank pikers just before the election. Nostradamus went out on the limb for Eisenhower in 1955 when he wrote: 'At a time when the chief easterner shall be king of Europe the leader of the great republic of the west, beyond the Straits of Gibraltar, shall be a man of iron.'"

Mr. Roberts, who publishes and interprets the old prognosticator for pay, says that any sucker can comprehend from the above that the chief easterner is Stalin and like the man of iron, because Eisenhower means "a heavier carrier of iron."

Seems to this observer that there were two notable cases of gun-jumping on the part of the U. S. delegation to the U. N. in recent days.

Mrs. Roosevelt, for God's sake, very actively for Gov. Stevenson, predicted that her's would be one of the first heads to roll when Mr. Eisenhower reshuffles the deck at UN and elsewhere.

The general has asked for no resignations among American delegates to the world body. When/ if he does, a source close to the situation assures me, he would replace several members before he'd consider Mrs. Roosevelt's job. Almost any UN delegate will tell you that the former first lady has been the hardest working and best informed representative we've had on an American team that often has left much to be desired.

The other case concerned our premature rejection of the Indian compromise which hopes to solve the Korean question. We changed our minds when the British endorsed the compromise. The U. S. delegation spoke out against the tediously achieved plan before it was even introduced. The plan, aimed at an armistice, calls for an immediate exchange of all prisoners who wished to return, and a 3-month period of cooling off before a UN commission composed of representatives from Sweden, Switzerland, Poland and Czechoslovakia decided what to do with the prisoners who refused to return.

We're holding about 170,000 Red Chinese and Koreans. About 100,000 of them have said they'll refuse to return. The enemy has about 12,000 UN prisoners, half of them South Koreans, 3,000 of them Americans and 3,000 from Britain, Turkey, the Philippines, Australia, etc., etc.

Our opposition to the Indian compromise found us in argument with our own friends. Those people want to get rid of the war almost as much as do the parents, wives and children of the 3,000 American POW's.

Farewell To Arbitration
Things over at the United Nations are reaching that stage where the druggist can't read the doctor's handwriting.

Our old ally La Bull France tipped off the works last week. Schuman primed the earphones with this choice parliamentary squawk, "my government warns the Assembly against the consequences of an interference which it will in no case and under no conditions abide."

You can read that again for the West Coast. Schuman warns the sideline coaches against running up and down in his nightmares.

The business of the U. N. is other people's business. This time it was Tunisia, a French protectorate. Schuman is exceeding thankful to get U. N. assistance in Indo China where France is in deeper than a weasel in a conduit foundry.

But the minute the U. N. pokes around Tunisia it's as welcome as a finger in the eye. The gored ox dreads the hot stove.

The Democrats would like to get their investigations cured before an impartial Republican takes over.

They remember when things went so slick in the Roosevelt administration that Franklin had to move Thanksgiving up a couple of weeks.

The administration is cooperating with Ike's scouts who are spying out Canaan the land flowing with milk and honey. Those leaks have got to be stopped.

After 20 years the Republicans are going to have a tough time bringing the status quo up to date. When they left Washington a man's word was as good as his bond if he could get somebody to go to it. Thanksgiving can be taken several ways in the various camps. The Democrats can be thankful it's over. The Republicans can be thankful it hasn't started yet.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK — Offhand it is a good guess that the most democratic men in the world are the 10,000 New York City taxi drivers and today I have a little evidence to prove the point. I call on Valerie Hobson to demonstrate the interesting truth that the taxi men are willing to talk to anyone, be he pauper or prince (or are those two one and the same these days?).

Miss Hobson, one of Britain's more talented actresses, was among us for a few weeks recently to help plug "The Promoter," in which she co-stars with Alec Guinness. The first few days here, fascinated by Manhattan, she got up regularly at 6:30 a.m. and walked for hours around the then comparatively empty city streets. Miss Hobson is to be commended; her method, of course, is the finest there is for discovering what a strange town is like and infinitely preferable to attending its night clubs or gazing at its tall buildings. Walk through a city's street by the hour and you soak up its feeling and its flavor. There's no other way.

Tired from her cabbing, one morning, she got into a cab and the cabbie, of course, turned around and said ain't you that British actress Hobson and she said why, yes, I am, and he said I guess they are giving you the full treatment here, ain't they, taking you to all the plush places and not letting you get enough sleep. Something like that, Valerie replied.

Now—just bear in mind that the gray-eyed Miss Hobson is one of the most elegant-looking sophisticated, queenly of women. Actually she is witty and sham-less and giggles a little, but in appearance she has that regal, cool, aloof bearing that the average model yearns for and never achieves. She is the kind of dame you would figure a cab driver to look at and say, well, she lives in a world far beyond me; she wouldn't look twice at a guy my style.

So what does this cabbie say? This: he twists around, when stopped for a red light, looks at Valerie sympathetically and says:

"Look, girlie, if you're tired of this rat-race and want a little peace and quiet, away from all this phony-boloney, why don't you come out to Brooklyn and have dinner with me and my wife some night?"

Whereupon he wrote out his name and address and handed it to her and his good deed done for the day, drove on. Miss Hobson never did get the chance to accept his invitation, but it warmed her heart and made for more good will than Acheson or Eleanor ever dreamed of.

The difference between London and New York cabs fascinated Valerie and she seemed genuinely sorry that local lovers had no privacy for their smooching (not that it stops them, of course). The old London cabs—which slowly are going out of style—have a big glass pane between driver and patron and the back windows are so small that it is virtually impossible to look in from outside.

"And, of course," she said ruefully, "here you're in and out of a cab in 10 minutes, because everything's so close. In London the distances are so great that a boy and girl can settle down to some considerable exchange of undying vows in the back seat before they arrive at their destination." On another cab ride here, Miss Hobson was conducted across town to the Cunard pier in the North River at what might conservatively be called breakneck speed. Her driver paced a 10-ton truck for a tiny opening between cars—and made it by the skin of his teeth. Valerie leaned back, trembling. The cabbie looked around.

"Can't let these big babies beat you," he said. "It just wouldn't be right."

Miss Hobson, recounting these adventures to me over a coke in the Waldorf's Peacock Alley one afternoon, also was intrigued by a shopping adventure. She dropped into Hammacher, Schlemmer's celebrated knickknack store and spotted some item she wanted to buy as a gift.

However, the British tourist can spend only five bucks a day. A salesgirl saw her, and came over. "I'll bet you're British," she said. "The way you're drooling over that item." Then she looked around carefully and, softly, out of the corner of her mouth, said:

"Go over to Lewis and Conger. You'll get it cheaper there."

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Since any letter you write acts as your personal emissary, it's important that it should be an emissary of charm. To mirror your meritorious self, your correspondence must not only express your thoughts gracefully but reflect your fine taste and fastidiousness by good form.

Individuality Expressed

You want your letters to express your individuality of course. But accomplish this through your thoughts and expressions—not through gaudy paper, novelty inks or haphazard form. Even your more admiring friends may question your judgment when receiving a note from you on too flimsy or rankly shoddy paper. Appearance is also important in your impersonal correspondence, such as letters questioning a bill or placing an order. It can actually determine whether a letter gets preferred or deferred treatment.

You can express your personality all that you wish, if you stay within the few rigid customs that govern the penning of letters. Accepted usage for paper for social notes prescribes white, cream, gray, light, medium or oxford blue in plain single or folded sheets. Your paper may be marked or not, according to your preference, but markings should consist of a conservatively printed or engraved monogram.

Paper bearing a house address is also suitable for home-written business letters. Best for this purpose is the inexpensive thin white sheet imprinted with both name and address. But for replying to an engraved invitation or any other formal correspondence nothing but weighty, cream or white double sheets in kid or dull finish is acceptable as good taste.

Good Form

Generous margins, at least a half-inch deep and preferably wider, measure up to good form. Keep them straight on both sides and your lines as level as possible. If your letter is short, center it on the page. When a double sheet is used, the message should be written on consecutive pages. Typing is no longer an issue; you may use it for all business, and informal and chatty letters to friends. But formality can only be expressed in long hand.

Writing good letters is an art. Writing good letters frequently can be a most rewarding hobby. Watch for more discussions of letter writing in this column in the near future if you are interested in making your missives true ambassadors of your charm!

"Icebox" Of Future Will Be Atomic And Won't Be Cold

By AL EASTMAN

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Scientists at the University of Michigan are experimenting with what they call the "icebox" of the future, except that the prototype is made of concrete, holds hundreds of gallons of water and weighs several tons.

Its heir, perhaps one day to be sold on the market to homeowners, might be a steel or aluminum box, lined with lead foil and "powered" simply by a slender rod of radioactive cobalt.

The "icebox" of the future will not be cold. But it will be more efficient, run silently without an outside source of power, will require no maintenance and foods taken from it will be fresh-tasting and more healthful.

In fact, they will be irradiated, chock-full of vitamins and absolutely free of germs which cause them to spoil.

Dr. Lloyd E. Brownell, chief of Michigan's fission products laboratory, has eaten "atomic" foods for more than a year, and, hale and hearty despite large doses of radiation in the food, is supervising construction of the world's first atomic icebox.

Hardly suitable for a modest bungalow in the suburbs, the test machine is a cube of concrete 11 feet long, eight feet square and contains a 16-foot pit filled with water to enable researchers to control it.

The principle behind Dr. Brownell's experiments is the knowledge that large doses of gamma rays will sterilize organic materials of the organisms which cause them to rot.

Why not foods?

A variety of fresh fruits and vegetables, packaged meats and unprocessed cereals were subjected to gamma rays given off by cobalt-60, an artificially produced element, manufactured by the Canadian government at Chalk River, Ont.

The result: Test foods remained fresh for months; some treated more than a year ago are edible today, and, witness Dr. Brownell, apparently can be eaten without danger.

The test box is being prepared to study more widely the effects of radiation on food and the effects of persons and animals subjected to an "atomic" diet.

The tests herald a day when pineapples, oranges, lemons, grapefruit and other tropical fruits or vegetables may be picked fresh, treated with gamma rays and delivered the year-round to northern climates, unspoiled and with true picked-ripe flavor.

"In fact," says Dr. Brownell, "treated foods actually taste better than they do when picked fresh."

The manatee, or sea cow, is essentially a vegetarian animal.

Local National Guard Units Plan Anniversary Program

This year, the sixth anniversary of the reorganization of the two local National Guard companies after World War II, will be marked by a formal review of the two units at the State Armory Wednesday night, December 17.

Major Robert Matlick, commander of the First Battalion, 115th Infantry Regiment, Maryland National Guard, said the observance will be held on an annual basis.

Participating will be Company C and Headquarters Company of First Battalion. Co-chairmen of the event are Lt. John M. Jackie and Lt. John Hensell, the respective company commanders.

The two companies were reorganized and federally recognized December 12, 1946. At the beginning of World War II, Company G was called into federal service and during its absence the Armory was occupied by two companies of Maryland State Guard.

The anniversary date falls on Friday, December 12, this year and the event has been changed to a regular drill night.

Invited will be the Governor, Gen. Milton A. Reckord and his staff; First Battalion staff from Hagerstown, Frederick and Cumberland; the mayors and councils of municipalities in the tri-state area, and the families of members of the two companies.

The 200 expected to attend will see a formal review and inspection. Following that they will watch the guardsmen go through a regular drill period, which includes training in the use of arms and infantry equipment.

One of the highlights of the program will be the presentation of an engraved wrist watch to the football queen of the high school winning the local Thanksgiving Day football game.

Next year, Lts. Hensell and Jackie report, a different award will be made at the anniversary review.

Lions Club Here To Hear Hargreaves

Albert Hargreaves, industrial promotion engineer of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, will speak at the Cumberland Lions Club luncheon meeting today at 12:15 p. m. at Central YMCA on "Ideals of Cumberland's Future."

The program will afford Hargreaves one of the first opportunities he has had to discuss his program before a local service club.

The Cumberland club will hold a joint meeting Wednesday, December 3, with other service clubs and Lewis J. Ort, program chairman, has arranged to have James Q. duPont, of the public relations department of the duPont Company, as speaker. His subject will be "We're Fiddling While Rome Burns."

Arrangements are being made for the Lions Club to hold a stag party Friday, December 5, in the social rooms of the Queen City Brewing Company.

About 1,700,000 Americans are now living in trailers.

Former Local Athlete Slays Daughter, Self

Dr. Wood H. Bruder, prominent 51-year-old physician of Houston, Texas, who played with the Cumberland Colts of the Mid-Atlantic League in 1929, killed his 12-year-old mentally afflicted daughter, Virginia, and then took his own life in a field near Houston on November 13, according to word received here. His wife, the former Harriette Edmondson, Morgantown, W. Va., said that despondency and despair over his daughter's condition were responsible for his act. The little girl's condition "constantly preyed on his mind and he was terribly overworked," she said, "and he hadn't had a good night's sleep for the past two weeks."

When investigating sheriff's deputies found the bodies of Dr. Bruder and the little girl near his automobile in a rice field where he maintained a duck blind, they also found four notes fastened on the steering wheel of the doctor's car. The notes described his sense of futility over his daughter's condition, and said he was sorry "it had to be this way."

Dr. Bruder had killed his daughter with a 12-gauge shotgun and then ended his own life with two blasts from the same gun. A fully loaded .25-caliber automatic pistol was also found on the ground near the car.

Dr. Bruder was one of Houston's all-time great schoolboy football athletes, and was the star half-back on Houston's championship football team of 1920. In February, 1923, he entered West Virginia University as a transfer from Washington & Lee, and in June, 1930, received the B. S. Degree after completing the two-year course of the School of Medicine.

While displaying convincing ability of his prowess as a football player, he did not play a great deal of football at West Virginia, but was better known as a baseball star. He also played professional football with the Buffalo Bisons and the Frankfort Yellow Jackets, and some professional baseball. Johnny Byrnes, Eckhart grocer who managed the Colts in 1929, yesterday recalled obtaining Bruder from the Wheeling Stogies during that season. The fleet Texan was regarded as a fine prospect for baseball, Byrnes said, but asked for his release at the end of the season to continue his medical studies.

During his student days at West Virginia, Dr. Bruder married Miss Harriette Edmondson, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Edmondson, of Morgantown. He completed his medical education at the University of Louisville, and had since practiced in Houston.

Survivors include his widow, two daughters, Mrs. George Eagle and Patricia Bruder, and three sons, Richard, Harry, and Mylie. One brother and four sisters, all of Houston, also survive.

Area Wives Go Overseas To Join Husbands

Two area residents left recently to join their husbands, who are stationed overseas with the armed forces.

Mrs. Mildred Nigh has gone to Naples, Italy, where her husband, D. P. Nigh, USN, has been assigned to a tour of duty. Mrs. Nigh was accompanied by her year-old daughter, Donna Jean. An older son, Kenneth, will reside with his grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Gray, Mt. Savage.

Mrs. Nigh's husband is a native of California. The couple met at Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he was stationed and she was employed.

The other area resident, Mrs. Ann Hammernsmith, is the former Miss Ann Denckenberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Denckenberger, Winchester Road.

She sailed November 15 aboard the United States for Southampton, England, where her husband, Pfc. Robert D. Hammernsmith, is stationed with the Air Force.

Pfc. Hammernsmith is a control tower operator at Schullthorpe AFB, Southampton. He entered the Air Force October 15, 1951, and received his basic training at Sampson AFB, N. Y. He attended a service school at Keesler Field, Biloxi, Miss., prior to going overseas in June for a three years tour of duty.

The couple will reside in Wells, England. Mrs. Hammernsmith had been employed as a bookkeeper by the Liberty Trust Company.

Movie Industry Counting On New Cinerama System

By WALTER LOWE

NEW YORK — Plainly worried over the public's apathy toward many of its movies, Hollywood is counting on three-dimensional films to bring 'em back into the theaters.

The race to widen the horizons of the screen by giving it new depth and perspective has already gotten under way here with the very successful and popular showings of the Cinerama system. It isn't strictly speaking three-dimensional but manages to achieve stunning stereoscopic effects through the use of three projectors and a huge, curved screen.

There are other promising contenders in the three-dimensional sweepstakes, and the movie industry as such isn't fussy as to who will emerge the winner—as long as there is one.

Natural vision, a recently developed and perfected system, is due for unveiling to the public at two theaters in Hollywood almost any day now. The first three-dimensional feature film — Bwana Devil—has been photographed in the Natural Vision process which uses a camera with two lenses and, at the theater, an ordinary screen with two projectors. Spectators must wear polarized glasses.

Yet another three-dimensional system, which registered a resounding hit at the Festival of Britain and works on approximately the same principle as Natural Vision, is in the offing. It's called Tri-Opticon and it will be sent on tour as soon as arrangements can be made.

Finally, there is a system—still in the blue-print stage—developed by John A. Norling, pioneer in the field of stereoscopy. It would use a single projector and a single film to achieve the same three-dimensional effects as the rest. Here again, viewers would need to wear glasses.

While the enthusiastic reaction to Cinerama in New York has served to spotlight the attraction of multi-dimension films, economy-minded producers and exhibitors are showing a degree of caution before embracing the theory that, within a few years, all movies will be shown with an added dimension.

For one, there is the question of skyrocketing costs. For another, the history of the movie business is strewn with the wrecks of three-dimensional crusaders who, after initial success, found themselves with a gadget in which the public had lost interest.

Expenses involved in the presentation of Cinerama are just short of fabulous. The Cinerama camera records a scene through three lenses and on three separate strips of film. At the theater, each of these films is run through its own projector with the resultant image covering a concave screen 64 feet across the top curve, 23 feet high and 49 feet from one side edge to the other.

To avoid reflection, the screen has to be specially made out of 1,100 vertical strips of perforated plastic tape, arranged like the louvers of an enormous Venetian blind. Fred Waller, inventor of Cinerama, which is presented by Merian C. Cooper and veteran newscaster, Lowell Thomas, also came up with an ingenious device that blends the three huge images into a complete picture without any visible dividing lines.

How much Cinerama, which imitates human vision as much as possible and creates its effects by providing a picture around the full sweep of the eye, interests Hollywood can be gleaned from the fact that L. B. Mayer, an astute showman and former boss of a big studio, has become Cinerama's chairman of the board.

Under his guidance, the first feature picture to be made for the system may go before the cameras soon amidst general speculation on whether it will be as effective as the special subjects on which Cinerama depends right up. How, the skeptics ask, will a romantic close-up look on this vast screen?

While Hollywood likes to make believe it has stumbled into something quite new, the three-dimensional film is actually almost as old as the movies themselves. The earliest practical stereoscopic viewing device was introduced by a Scotsman in 1849.

The first movies giving the illusion of a third dimension were shown in a New York theater in 1924, and in 1935 Loew's, Inc., released its famous "Audioscopes" which created a momentary sensation and were billed as "Pictures That Jump Off the Screen Into Your Lap." A multi-dimensional film in color also caused quite a stir at the New York World's Fair, but again stereoscopy failed to catch on.

Whether the time is now ripe for another try at three-dimension is anybody's guess. It's something television hasn't got and that, according to one of the movie executives here, is the thing that counts.

The earth travels at the average rate of 18.5 miles per second on yearly voyage around the sun.

The Mayor and Council will hold a public hearing next week to hear arguments for and against the fluoridation of city water.

The meeting has been tentatively set for Thursday, December 4, at 1:45 p. m. in City Hall, according to Mayor Roy W. Eves.

Employment Office To Close Tomorrow

The local office of the Department of Employment Security will be closed tomorrow, according to Francis A. Kenney, manager.

Churches Gather Relief Clothes

The Catholic churches of Cumberland and Western Maryland are currently engaged in collecting wearing apparel and other articles for Korea and the refugees of Europe and the Near East.

This week has been set aside as the Catholic Bishops' Thanksgiving Clothing Collection and is sponsored by the War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Articles are being left at the churches and Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor of St. Patrick's Church and rural dean of Western Maryland, said the response so far has been gratifying.

Wanted are wearable garments, useable bedding and blankets, shoes in good repair, men and women's underwear, work shoes, and clothing for children and infants.

High heeled shoes for women will be of little use, but preferred are sandals, wedges and other comfortable oxford type footwear.

Next week the parishes will pack the clothing and send the packages to the War Relief Services of the NCWC. From there the clothing will be sent to the pontifical mission in the Near East which carries on an extensive program of aid among thousands of needy people.

Clothing may be left at the Social Center at St. Patrick's Church, and at the parish halls of St. Mary's and SS. Peter and Paul churches.

Mrs. Verna Woy Becomes Bride Of Dr. W. J. Koelz

Mrs. Verna M. Woy, Moorefield, W. Va., and Dr. W. J. Koelz, Keyser, W. Va., were married November 25 in the Moorefield Methodist parsonage in a quiet ceremony. Rev. Paul Sutton officiated.

The couple was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Foster E. Arnold, Moorefield; Mrs. Clarence Fisher, Moorefield and R. M. Frye, Keyser.

Dr. and Mrs. Koelz will reside at Trouten Holler Farms, south of Keyser.

Dr. Koelz, well-known dentist and prominent in political circles in the section, is a former mayor of Keyser.

get for 1953-54, which will go before the legislature in January.

It was explained when the budget was drawn up in September the county-by-county property assessments could only be estimated. Now the actual figures are available. They showed a greater increase in assessed valuations than the board's finance experts had anticipated.

This means the counties will have more taxes than anticipated to meet school costs and the state will have to give them $400,000 less help.

Local 1874

Local 1874 also asks for a decree that the 20 positions vacated by those employees who accepted technological displacement pay be filled by other employees from the seniority list of the Cellulose Acetate Department. The union also desires that employees in the department who suffered loss of wages or other benefits as a result of the changed work assignment be reimbursed to the extent of their loss from April 7 to the filing of the bill of complaint.

Mayor Will

Nuzum reported yesterday that progress is being made on a detailed survey of the route.

He estimated the job will cost in over half a million dollars but said no accurate estimate can be made until the survey is completed.

The Engineering Department's survey crew, he added, has had to halt work on the survey temporarily on a number of occasions in order to do work asked by the Street and Water departments.

Nuzum emphasized that accurate details of the necessary construction must be obtained before any price tag can be assigned for the work.

A number of weeks ago, the Mayor and Council toured the proposed route of the new highway in South Cumberland and suggested minor changes in a route proposed by the South End Business Men's group.

One of these was that the road bypass the clay pits at a South End brickyard.

Even after all of the route is surveyed in the field, considerable work must be done before the survey is completed.

One of the strong points in the plan is that the area between the super highway and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks would be set aside for industrial sites.

Similar moves have been made in a number of cities to set aside available sites for industrial use only. Backers from South Cumberland point out the sites would be particularly valuable since the factories would have access to both railroad and highway.

Victory Dance Is Set Tomorrow By Rec Club

The Cumberland Rec Club victory dance will be held at 8:30 Thursday evening at Central YMCA, Ralph L. Lewis, program secretary of the "Y" has announced.

Jimmy Andrews' orchestra will provide the music for the Thanksgiving Day affair which will wind up school activities that day following the Fort Hill-Allegany football contest. Approximately 400 persons attended last season's dance, Lewis said.

The regular Rec Club program Friday also will be held, he noted.

James Q. du Pont Will Talk At Meeting Of Service Clubs

James Q. du Pont, a great-grandson of the founder of E. I. du Pont & Co., Wilmington, Del., will address the combined service clubs of Cumberland Wednesday, December 3, at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA.

In a talk entitled "We're Working While Rome Burns," du Pont will make several observations and draw some basic conclusions on the American business and industrial picture as he sees it today.

"These conclusions," he says, "are based on my almost endless travels to practically every section of the United States during the last five years."

Du Pont is administrative assistant of the public relations department of the du Pont Company with headquarters in Wilmington.

A trained engineer with a degree in electrical engineering from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he is a native of Johnstown, Pa.

His experience ranges from operating a steam roller and working as garage mechanic in Johnstown to engineering duties with the vast atomic energy program which du Pont carried out for the government during World War II.

After his graduation from MIT in 1926, he went to work as superintendent of bus maintenance for the Johnstown Traction Company. About 1932 he went into business for himself, operating a commercial and industrial photographic service in Johnstown.

In 1940, he worked on a du Pont construction crew building a plant at Clinton, Iowa. He later served as project engineer there until 1942 when he was loaned to Remington Arms Company, a subsidiary of du Pont.

From 1943, until the end of the war he worked on atomic energy projects. Since 1946 he has risen in the public relations department to become administrative assistant.

Dividend Is Paid By Liberty Trust

The board of directors of the Liberty Trust Company yesterday declared the usual semi-annual dividend of 35 cents per share plus an extra dividend of 30 cents a share on the 60,000 outstanding shares of capital stock of the par value of $10 per share.

On June 30, 1952 the regular semi-annual dividend of 35 cents per share was paid. This makes a total of $1 per share declared out of earnings for the year 1952 or 10 per cent of the par value of the shares outstanding. The dividend is payable January 10, 1953 to stockholders of record December 26, 1952.

Wounded In Korea

Two area veterans of the Korean war were reported wounded in a casualty list released yesterday by the Department of Defense. They are:

Pfc. Matthew C. Bridges, husband of Mrs. Norita L. Bridges, Flintstone, and Sgt. Joseph E. Hunt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Hunt, Midland.

Sgt. Bridges was wounded in the arm while fighting enemy troops. He entered the Army 15 months ago and has been in Korea for three months. He is a graduate of Beall High School, Frostburg.

Michigan State Looms As 1952 Grid Champions

Pile Up Huge Vote, Terps Drop To 15th

By JOHN CHANDLER
NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—Michigan State, its football schedule completed, remained the country's No. 1 college football team today in the ninth and next-to-last Associated Press poll.

The big question is whether the undefeated Spartans can maintain their huge vote appeal next week in the final poll.

Perhaps nothing that transpires in the Notre Dame-Southern California game Saturday at South Bend, Ind., will affect the final outcome in the AP poll that has been accepted since 1936 as establishing a national champion.

However, the Irish certainly can affect a few votes as it concerns Southern California, which moved into the No. 2 slot this week.

Notre Dame, out of the top 10 teams for most of the fall, has finally found itself No. 7. Furthermore, the spoilers from South Bend are being picked by many experts to whom Southern California, which gained a Rose Bowl berth against Wisconsin by edging UCLA Saturday, 14-12.

Irish Pull Surprises

Notre Dame has pulled three big surprises this fall, whipping Texas, Southwest champion; Purdue, co-champs of the Big Ten; and Oklahoma, holder of the Big Seven crown. Michigan State whipped Notre Dame 21-3.

Georgia Tech, which had been voted the No. 2 team for the last two polls, slipped to third this week, just 21 points behind Southern California.

Georgia Tech picks on off-thumped Georgia Saturday, and should ring up victory No. 11 as it heads for a New Year's Day Sugar Bowl date with Mississippi. Eight of the 10 top teams have a game remaining, which could alter the final lineup. UCLA, as well as Michigan State, is through. UCLA, third in last week's poll, dropped to fifth.

Oklahoma, No. 4, is at Oklahoma A. & M. Saturday; Mississippi, No. 6, is at home to Mississippi State; Alabama, No. 8, is host to Auburn; Tennessee, No. 9, plays at Vanderbilt; and Texas, No. 10, entertains Texas A. & M. Thursday. Tennessee and Texas play in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1.

Terps Plunge To 15th

Only one team dropped from the top ten this week—once mighty Maryland, which skidded from eighth to 15th after losing to Alabama. Bama, 14th last week, gained an Orange Bowl berth and the No. 8 ranking by topping Maryland. Alabama meets Syracuse No. 16 in the Orange Bowl.

COUPLE OF GOOD SKATES--BUT DUEL NOT LIKELY

Sonja Henie

Barbara Ann Scott

ALTHOUGH Barbara Ann Scott, former Olympic skating champion, said in Denver that it would "be kind of fun" to compete with Sonja Henie, the movie actress and also former Olympic champ, in a $20,000 skating duel, it appeared unlikely that the duel would be staged. Miss Henie, in Boston, denied that such a contest was her idea and said she had enough to worry about conducting her own show.

Vessels To Get Heisman Trophy

Scarbath Is Second And Paul Giel Third

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—Oklahoma Halfback Billy Vessels was named today as winner of the Heisman Trophy as the outstanding college football player for 1952. The annual award of the Downtown Athletic Club of New York represented votes from 1,222 sports writers, sportscasters and telecasters. A total of 162 different players were named in the balloting.

Vessels, leading scorer in the Big Seven, was named on 98 first-place ballots. He got 91 votes for second place and 49 for third for 525 points on a 3-2-1 point basis: Jack Scarbath, Maryland quarterback, got 367 points to beat out Minnesota backfield ace Paul Giel, who received 329 points.

Don Moomaw of UCLA, line-backing star, was fourth. He and Oklahoma center Tom Catlin, who was tenth in the balloting, were the only linemen among the top 12. Fifth place went to John Lattner of Notre Dame, sixth to Paul Cameron of UCLA, seventh to Jim Sears of Southern California, eighth to Don McAuliffe of Michigan, ninth to Don Heinrich of Washington, eleventh to Leon Hardeman of Georgia Tech and twelfth to Eddie Crowder of Oklahoma.

Last year's Heisman winner was Halfback Dick Kazmaier of Princeton.

Pimlico Track Sale Completed

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25 (AP)—The directors of Pimlico Race Track today sealed the deal by which they are selling Old Hilltop to a group headed by Cary Beshamer, South Carolina textile manufacturer and horse breeder.

The Maryland Jockey Club voted to sell the Beshamer group approximately 78,000 shares of Pimlico stock for $25 a share, or about $1,950,000.

This will give the new owners 86 per cent of the shares.

The purchasers announced they would pay the same price for any other stock the owners want to sell.

Associated with Beshamer in the purchase are Ben and Herman Cohen, Baltimore building contractors, owners of a television station WAAM here, and his partners in the Cranwood and Thistle Downs race tracks in Ohio.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 25 (AP)—The Mahi Shrine Temple today announced that Maryland's Jack Scarbath has been signed to play with the South team in the Christmas night All-Star football game in the Orange Bowl.

Maryland's huge tackle, Dick "Little Mo" Modzelewski, will play for the South while Bernard Flowers of Purdue, one of the country's top pass catchers, will be on the North squad.

The South has won three of the four games played in this annual North-South charity game sponsored by the Shrine.

Ints Prexy Attacks Greedy Attitude Of Major Leagues

Cites 24-Hour Recall And Radio Broadcasts

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International League, is heading to league Phoenix, Ariz., and the minor league meetings, armed with ammunition against the "greedy" majors' attitude toward radio and the 24-hour recall.

"They ran a shuttle service in and out of the American Association all summer," he said, "and even build up excursions to take our own fans away from town for the weekend."

"They don't get much money from their radio rights in our towns. You'd think they'd stop when they saw how much big league broadcasts hurt our attendance. But they're all the same. They're too greedy."

Shaughnessy is particularly bitter about the use of the 24-hour recall by the majors, although it has not been a problem in his own league.

"They ran a shuttle service in and out of the American Association all summer," he said, "and even build up excursions to take our own fans away from town for the weekend."

"They don't get much money from their radio rights in our towns. You'd think they'd stop when they saw how much big league broadcasts hurt our attendance. But they're all the same. They're too greedy."

"I am sure the boys are going to be very bitter at Phoenix unless the majors do something about cutting out that 24-hour recall."

With the minors beset by a host of problems, Shaughnessy sees the eventual answer in four major leagues. The two "new" majors would include the best minor league towns.

"They could take Denver and some of these good Texas cities like Houston and add them to the best coast league towns to make a whole of a league," he said. "I wouldn't be surprised if that happens in five or six years."

"And we could make some sort of an amalgamation of the International and Association. Why, we have at least three cities that are major league towns right now—Montreal, Toronto and Baltimore."

HOW DO YOU LIKE YOUR JOB?

Is the company you work for successful? Is it growing? Is it making money? Are its products or services highly regarded?

If you have faith in the future of your company and would like to be an owner, chances are that you can. Hundreds of thousands of employees have become part owners of the companies for which they work by buying shares in those companies.

The company you select needn't be the one you work for. Over a thousand corporations have qualified for listing on the New York Stock Exchange. They are engaged in all kinds of businesses. Many of their names are famous in the business world . . . names you hear daily.

You can buy as many shares as you want, from one to hundreds. The number of shares you own measures your part of the company—your part of the dividends it may pay—the ownership risks you have assumed.

In America, private business is public business with ownership shared by millions of people. There is no lock on the door. Information about how you can become a share owner is yours for the asking at the office of any member firm of the New York Stock Exchange.

THREE PLAYERS who have been the mainstays of pro basketball teams here for the past six seasons will give it another whirl when the Old Germans launch their campaign next week.

Bob Pence, Lou Bell and George Geatz were with Bobby Cavanaugh's Amvets, Cumberland's first postwar quint of 1946-47, and they've been the backbone of local clubs since that season.

The Amvets, Dukes and Spas over a six-year period have engaged in 183 games, winning 98 and losing 85 for a .536 average.

Pence has paced the team scores five of the six seasons and needs only five more tallies to reach the 2,500 points mark. He's rolled up 2,495 tallies and played in 174 of the 183 contests.

Bell has figured in 178 games, has amassed 1,956 points and needs 44 to attain the 2,000 mark. Lou played in 148 consecutive games from 1946 to 1951.

MORE POINTS have been scored against Fort Hill this year than any football season since 1941 when opposing teams counted 88 times in nine games against the Sentinels.

The Hilltoppers have yielded 78 points in nine games this season with one more contest remaining on their schedule. Seven of the eight teams have scored on Fort Hill.

CENTRAL CATHOLIC'S Vikings of Pittsburgh will replace LaSalle's Explorers on Donora High's football schedule next season.

BOXING IN BALTIMORE is reported to be at its lowest ebb in two decades.

And it's rumored the South Atlantic AAU Association tournament may not be staged this year because of the dearth of amateurs. The meet was held here in 1949.

There have been no amateur shows in Cumberland for 18 months. Bobby Greene promoted the last one May 28, 1951 and the fact that Cumberland was running out of talent was very much in evidence at that time.

The peak year here was 1948 when 24 shows and one tournament were held. The number dwindled to eight shows and one tourney in 1949, five shows in 1950 and a single presentation in 1951.

Four years ago the sport was so prosperous here that five organizations, namely, Police Boys Club, Royale A. C., St. Mary's A. C., Diamond A. C. and Amvets sponsored fistic programs.

THE WINTER RACING season gets under way in the Sunny South on Thanksgiving Day when the Fair Grounds (New Orleans) and Tropical Park (Coral Gables, Fla.) open their meetings.

EARL SMITH, the bantamweight boxer, whom "Sparky" Chisholm handled in the amateurs, is back in this country from Korea and Japan.

Smitty tips the beam at 140 now. He had three bouts while overseas, winning two and losing one.

Earl appeared in 27 matches before he went into the service. He won 12 and lost 15.

After spending a furlough here he has returned to Fort Meade, Md.

Trojans, Irish Ask Permission To Televis Tilt

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 25 (AP)—Southern California and Notre Dame asked the National Collegiate Athletic Association today for permission to televise their football game here Saturday.

The Rev. Edmund T. Joyce, Notre Dame's executive vice president and chairman of its Faculty Board in Control of Athletics, disclosed that the two universities had joined in making the request.

An NCAA ruling permits televising of only one major game nationally each week.

Father Joyce said the Trojans-Irish game is a sellout. He said officials of the two schools are hopeful it will be possible for the game to be seen on the West Coast and through the country.

The Army-Navy game at Philadelphia is the one the NCAA has approved for televising this Saturday.

Are Giving Blood So That Our Wounded May Live!

But -

WHAT HAPPENED TO THAT PINT OF BLOOD YOU WERE GOING TO GIVE?

Today's medical and surgical techniques are sending back more and more wounded men to lead normal, constructive lives. These techniques require repeated transfusions of whole blood for operations, for skin grafting, for plastic surgery. That's why America has been asking for voluntary blood donations at the rate of 300,000 pints a month.

But . . . the quota is far from being filled.

That's the picture. And now that you know it, we think that you, too, will thoughtfully give your blood.

Be assured that your Red Cross, its nurses and doctors, will allow you to donate only if you are physically capable of doing so. As to after-effects, any doctor will tell you that you'll continue to feel fine—that your body quickly and easily manufactures lots more new blood to replace that which you've given. In many instances, people say that giving blood has helped them feel better; sharpens appetites, and makes them feel "simply wonderful!"

Roll up your sleeve along with all the other Americans who give the gift for which there is no substitute—life-giving, health-giving, joy-giving blood!

Plans Progress For Parsons Athletic Field

Tucker Board Hears State Aid Report

PARSONS—The Tucker County Board of Education met here recently when Jason Wolford, county superintendent, made a report on progress on plans for the Parsons High School athletic field project. He reported a bonding company had expressed a willingness to purchase the bonds, provided that in case revenues from the field in any one year, failed to raise sufficient funds for paying interest and principal, that any profits from basketball be pledged to make up the default.

The superintendent also reported on a meeting held in Elkins with a committee appointed by the West Virginia Superintendents Association to check on how the new "State Aid Formula" would affect Tucker county. According to calculations, if the new formula is put into effect by the State Legislature, Tucker County will lose $20,755 over what it is now receiving, but the loss would be deducted gradually over a four year period.

Felx Colabrese, assistant superintendent, reported on driver education insurance, and the question of selling the Cross school was brought before the Board. The question was tabled.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 25 (INS)—Don't for a moment think that Ingrid Bergman has abandoned her fight for her child, Jenny Ann Lindstrom. Attorney I. H. Prinzmetal is just back from Rome where he spent eight weeks and he conferred with Ingrid and her husband. He's hoping that Dr. Peter Lindstrom will allow the little girl to visit her mother in Rome without a lawsuit—but if there's no other way, he will join with Gregson Bautzer and Jerry Giesler in a fight to the finish.

Attorney Prinzmetal told me that on January 15 Ingrid and Rossellini are starting a picture together called "Duel." It's the story of a husband and wife—the husband an older man who retires to raise horses, and there comes a break with the wife.

He tells me that in real life Ingrid and Rossellini are extremely happy.

At long last Anne Baxter signed that contract to make "Blue Gardenia" on the Warner lot for Alex Gottlieb. This story was suggested by the Black Dahlia murder case, and Nat "King" Cole has written a song called "Blue Gardenia" which will be the theme song of the picture.

The Black Dahlia murder, which was never solved, has been used as the basis of the story by Vera Caspary. In the picture, Anne goes the way of so many young girls—the wrong way. Work starts shortly after Thanksgiving.

I didn't know that Don Hartman was in Rome until I received a cable from him. After getting the cable I did a little sleuthing and found Don had gone to Europe to see Greg Peck about doing "Babylon Revisited." He will also talk to Willy Wyler about directing this F. Scott Fitzgerald story.

Don also starts arrangements for the production of "Wings Across the Sea" in England, which starts December 10.

My friend Don really has many things brewing. He has "Elephant Walk" ready to start in Ceylon, and he'll meet with Irving Asher to make arrangements for the picture interiors in London.

I was very proud of the motion picture representation at the City of Hope dinner at the New Statler Hotel—even though Eric Johnston, who received the citation this year, could not be present.

Dick Powell was the soul of wit and brevity introducing the honored guests on the dais; Danny Thomas, too, was excellent M.C.-ing the big show.

Kathryn Grayson, in a white gown and so lovely with her new blonde hair, is working hard preparing her Grace Moore movie, but she wasn't too busy to attend and to sing at the dinner.

Tony Martin gave with song after song. Those marvelous dancers, Darvas and Julia, brought down the house.

All in all it was a wonderful success for a wonderful cause—caring for victims of tuberculosis and cancer free of charge.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Was Lana Turner chaperoning Steve Crane or vice versa? She was at Ciro's with Jerry Ohrbach, and at the same time Steve had Mona Knox as his girl friend.

Director Irving Reis is in Mayo Clinic for a serious operation. His wife expects a baby so she is unable to go with him.

Eddie Cantor has been paged by a national magazine to write a byline story on "I Had a Heart Attack." Remember when Irving Cobb wrote his famous article on his appendectomy?

Both Barbara Hutton and her son, Lance, have been seeing a great deal of Cary Grant. It's no renewal of any romance with Cary. He and Betsy Drake sail December 4 for Tangiers where they will spend time in Barbara's house there.

Lupita Tovar, well known Mexican actress who is married to Agent Paul Kohner, is recovering from major abdominal surgery.

Isn't it a San Antonio airline hostess who is now receiving attention from Vic Damone? San Antonio is where he's stationed.

A miracle recovery must have happened to Hilda West, the late Lady Mendel's secretary, who inherited her fortune. She was given up by three or four physicians and now is apparently on the road to health.

Reports Truman May Tour World Recall Journey Of General Grant

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Reports that President Truman may travel abroad after he leaves the White House bring back recollections of the sensational journey taken by a predecessor, Ulysses S. Grant. Ex-President Grant's trip around the globe in 1877, 1878 and 1879 could well be described as one of the wonders of the world during the time he spent flitting from one country to another.

Long accounts of his adventures were cabled home and the American public read with avid interest of the acclaim with which the Civil War hero and two-term President was received.

He was greeted like royalty; adulation was heaped upon him wherever he went; he dined with Queen Victoria, the khedive of Egypt, and the sultan of the Ottoman Empire; hobnobbed with Germany's Bismarck, England's Disraeli, and the viceroy of China; and had lengthy discussions with King Chulalongkorn of Siam and the mikado (emperor) of Japan.

In Switzerland, he climbed the glaciers; in China he ate bird's nest soup; in India, he watched the maharajah's nautch girls dance; in Turkey, he received four Arabian horses from Sultan Abdul Hamid, and in Egypt, he sailed the Nile with the khedive.

General Grant's adventures have been chronicled in "Around the World With Grant," a two-volume account of the former President's peregrinations written by John Russell Young, New York Herald correspondent, who covered his trip. Mr. Truman may already have sampled some of its passages.

General Grant left the White House on March 15, 1877, with a desire to get away from politics and the cares of statesmen and see the world. Two months later, on May 17, he sailed from Philadelphia on the steamer Indiana, after an uproarious sendoff, with his wife and son, Jesse, 19.

American consulates abroad were at once directed to give the ex-President every possible consideration and the Navy placed at his disposal a warship for short water hops.

Arriving in England, General Grant received a tremendous welcome from the populace. At New Castle, he made a short speech to 80,000 factory workers who left their jobs to see the famous American general. Still larger receptions followed at Sheffield, Birmingham and Manchester.

Queen Victoria invited General Grant to dinner at Windsor, but her invitation did not include Jesse. This made the general angry and an invitation was extended to Grant's son. However, quite a wrangle ensued when, upon arriving at the castle, Jesse was told he would have to eat with the "help." The queen then reversed herself and Jesse was permitted to attend the dinner with his parents.

After England, General Grant went to Belgium and Switzerland and then to Paris. At Versailles he sailed aboard the USS Vandalia for Naples, Sicily, Egypt and Palestine. Then he returned to Italy and had an audience with the Pope.

After that he paid France a second visit, journeyed to Holland, and hobnobbed with Bismarck in Berlin. The inexhaustible ex-President then visited Copenhagen, Norway, Sweden and Russia, where he became quite friendly with the czar.

From the land of the czars he traveled to Vienna, Spain and Portugal, to Ireland, and back again to England.

Having conquered all of Europe, he departed with his entourage for the Orient. His two most enjoyable stays were in China and Japan.

MEDAL OF HONOR winner Lt. Joseph Rodriguez, of San Bernardino, Calif., and his bride, the former Rosa Aranda, board a plane in Los Angeles for Mexico City, where they will spend their honeymoon. A reception in the Mexican capital awaited the Korean war hero. (International)

In China, Viceroy Li Hung Chang took the American hero to his bosom. He gave him a dinner which lasted eight hours and included 70 courses. Grant said upon his return to the United States that the Chinese viceroy was one of four great men he met on his tour.

The others he named were Disraeli, the British prime minister; Bismarck, the "Iron Chancellor" of Germany, and Leon Gambetta, the French statesman.

General Grant ended his trip in Japan, where he spent several pleasant months discussing philosophy with the mikado and enjoying the exotic scenery and Japanese life.

During his tour, which lasted two years and four months, he made 300 speeches, quite a feat in itself for a man who loathed public speaking. He left behind himself also many pearls of wisdom, such as the remark that "Venice would be a fine place if it were drained."

The grand tour ended with his return to San Francisco, Sept. 21, 1879, where, refreshed from the vicissitudes of politics, he turned his attention to an unsuccessful campaign for a third term.

Thirty years later, in 1909, another President, upon retiring from office, also made a famous trip abroad. He was Theodore Roosevelt. Six weeks after leaving the White House, Mr. Roosevelt left on a trip to Africa, during which he hunted big game.

After 10 months in the wilds of Africa, Mr. Roosevelt made a triumphal march through Europe, winning both acclaim and criticism, the latter for some of his outspoken remarks.

Like Grant, T. R. returned to the United States, in June, 1910, to find himself again immersed in politics and made an unsuccessful bid again for the presidency. In 1913, he visited South America and made a hazardous trip into the wilds of Brazil.

STAG LINES for men by Bert Bacharach

Sunny Raincoats

FASHION: This fall's raincoats are spruced up—in a smart assortment of checks and plaids. The new models are not just weather-proofed topcoats, but real water-shedding garb. Earl Blackwell (at right), head of the VIP-tracking Celebrity Service, wears one with a small houndstooth check.

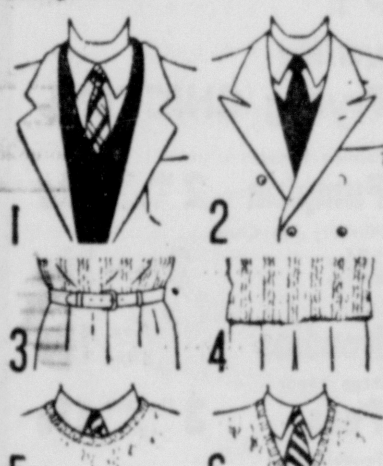

People: Cornelius Vanderbilt never used a check book. Always wrote checks on scraps of writing paper. . . . Carrie Nation was opposed to almost everything—but not to horse racing! . . . Memo to J. Stalin: In the first "beizba!" game of the World Series the pitchers were a part Indian (Allie Reynolds) and a Negro (Joe Black). Any question about inequality in America?

Factuals: What's all this about rabbits? An oyster produces a million eggs a year! . . . Hollywood usually shows GI's pulling hand grenade pins with their teeth. Actually, it's practically impossible.

Good Ideas: Try nail polish remover to take off the gummy residue left by adhesive tape on your skin. . . . For a slightly upset stomach, try eating some dry soda crackers. . . . If the weather looks like snow, put sheets of newspaper over the windshield of your car. You won't have to chip ice off later.

Handyman: Use wax or car polish on window sills to protect them from dirt and water. . . . If the gas flame in your stove is not predominantly blue you're wasting gas. . . . Put a dab of luminous paint on your flashlight to help you spot it in the dark.

In the Stores: "Antique-Mobile" cufflinks—reproducing the Stutz Bearcat, Stanley Steamer and others. . . . Personalized tea and coffee bags with initials or names on each. . . . Small porcelain-like paint sticks called "Tip-On" for touching up chipped spots on stoves and refrigerators.

Dress Tips: This is a good time of year to wear sleeveless sweaters. But wearing one requires observance of a few maxims. Don't, for instance, wear sweaters so it makes the coat collar gape (see drawing, 1). Coat collar should cover the sweater neck. Don't wear one with dark or dressy clothes, or with double-breasted suits (2). If sweater is too long, tuck it inside trousers (3). It looks slovenly hanging outside (4). Don't get a sweater with a too-high neck—one that will conceal your collar (5). Get one that shows off both collar and tie (6).

Pass the Cigars: This week Dr. Everett Clinchy, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, for the magnificent job he and his group have done in advancing the cause of tolerance and brotherhood.

W. Va. Tourist Trade Up By 19 Per Cent

According to statistics gathered in the Seventh Annual West Virginia Vacation Travel Survey, just completed by the West Virginia Industrial and Publicity Commission, income from the tourist business in the Mountain State will reach an estimated $158,099,092 in 1952. This total is 19 per cent more than the $132,951,411 reported in 1951.

The total number of tourist parties was roughly the same in 1952 as in 1951 but the average number of days spent in the state rose from 3.5 days in 1951 to 4.4 days in 1952.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR Is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

JUMP RIGHT INTO GAME
THERE is only one kind of hand with which a fine player jumps right into a game contract in the suit with which the partner had opened the bidding. That is one which is so good in support of his hand that there appears a good chance for game, but which is so weak defensively against other suits that he desires to shut the opponents out of entering the bidding; if he can. With a hand containing good general defensive strength, which seems pretty sure to produce a game in support of partner's suit, it is usually preferable to give him either a double raise or make a first call in some other suit, a jump of one if it is terrifically strong.

City Is Expediting Survey Of Highway In So. Cumberland

Mayor Roy W. Eves announced yesterday he will recommend to the City Council that the proposed Industrial Boulevard linking Oldtown Road with Thomas Street be included in the city's legislative program.

And Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, said the City Engineering Department is expediting a survey of the mile-long project which will cost at least half a million dollars. Officials said no definite steps can be taken toward including the project in the city's legislative program until an accurate estimate of cost is secured.

Mayor Eves added that he will also recommend that a number of other projects, including the widening of one block of Franklin Street, be included in the civic improvement bond issue the city will ask the General Assembly to authorize.

Present Program

On October 11, the Mayor and Council submitted to the Allegany County Delegation a seven-point legislative program which included requests for bond issues totaling more than $360,000.

These included a bond issue for the improvement of Frederick and Bedford streets. Although no price tag was listed, the cost to the city has since been estimated at $250,000. Total cost will be about $500,000, but half of the cost will be shared by the federal government.

The second point was a request for a $110,000 bond issue for civic improvements, including $20,000 for the Fire Department, $20,000 for improvements to the city airport, $45,000 for City Hall remodeling and $25,000 for additions and improvements to Constitution Park.

A bond issue was also suggested for a new street below the B. and O. tracks between Bedford and Hay streets.

May Share Cost

City officials have been checking on the possibility of securing federal aid on the Industrial Boulevard since it would provide an alternate path for State Route 51 into Cumberland.

Discussion on the belt route was intensified yesterday as the South End Business Men's Association served notice that it expects to push the proposal for extending Fifth Street to Oldtown Road.

The views were expressed in a prepared statement read for George Millenson, association president, at a session Monday night at Grace Methodist Church.

Millenson said he had read carefully accounts of the $360,000 bond issue which the council is proposing to ask of the county delegation for street improvements. He said he had noted that these proposals did not include the Fifth Street Boulevard, sponsored by the South End business group.

"There are several ways to test the strength of a community and the best way I know of is when a community backs up with its full power a cause that will benefit every citizen of the community," he said.

"Our association knows that the Fifth Street Boulevard will benefit every citizen, South Cumberland as well as Cumberland in general. And we know we have public opinion back of us."

"It is our hope," Millenson continued, "that the Mayor and City Council will get behind us."

"Our association is determined to act for the benefit of South Cumberland and we do not intend to devote our time to lip service only," he concluded.

Among the 53 members and guests attending were Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, and Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer. There was no discussion on the Millenson statement.

The Industrial Boulevard, linking Route 51 to Thomas Street has been recommended to the council by the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission.

Local 1874 Asks Court To Uphold Arbitration Rule

Files Equity Suit Against Celanese

Local 1874, Textile Workers of America, by Playford S. Aldridge, yesterday filed an equity suit against the Celanese Corporation of America in Allegany County Circuit Court asking the court to enforce all legal findings made in a recent arbitration case.

The six-page bill of complaint was filed for the union by Attorney Leslie J. Clark.

20 Jobs Eliminated

Clark states that on or about March 7, 1952, Celanese, through Robert W. Brown, superintendent of personnel for the Amcelle plant, notified the union that effective April 7, 1952, work assignment changes would be made in Departments 1, 2 and 9 of the Cellulose Acetate Department eliminating 20 jobs on a full production basis. The jobs were abolished April 7.

Local 1874 subsequently filed a demand for arbitration of the new work assignment with the American Arbitration Association contesting the right of the company to increase the work load in the Cellulose Acetate Department and calling it "unwarranted and unjustified."

Samuel H. Jaffee of Washington was designated as arbitrator and held hearings on the matter in Cumberland June 18 and July 3. Clark cites that on September 29 the arbitrator handed down an award declaring the work load assignment put into effect April 7 was unreasonable and improper.

Request Restoration

The textile union subsequently requested the plant to restore the work assignments as they existed before April 7 but Clark contends that the defendant has refused to do so in violation of the terms of the arbitration award.

Furthermore, the bill of complaint charges that the acts of the defendant are calculated and have a tendency to undermine the prestige of the union and will undermine collective bargaining unless the defendant is restrained by the court from breaking terms of the contract.

Besides asking the court to determine and enforce all legal findings made by arbitration, the union seeks a decree requiring Celanese to restore work assignments in Department 1, 2 and 9 of Cellulose Acetate Department to the level of before April 7.

CAP Pilots Join Search For Airplane

Civil Air Patrol pilots will redouble their efforts in this area today to locate a plane reported missing since Sunday afternoon.

Eight planes manned by pilots of Fort Cumberland Flight, CAP, searched some 2,000 square miles of rugged country in the Tri-State area yesterday but failed to sight the single-engine Navion which left Reading, Pa., Sunday and was last heard of in the Martinsburg, W. Va., area.

All CAP pilots were ordered to leave the Cumberland Municipal Airport today at 8 a. m. on search routes laid out by Martinsburg CAP headquarters.

Officials said the search may be particularly difficult since it is reported the ship was painted green, which would be difficult to sight in the mountains.

From Elkins, W. Va., an amphibious Albatross yesterday joined in the search, manned by a search crew from Westover Air Force Base, Mass.

Subsidy Needed For Off-Street Parking In City

Officials Hear Views Of New York Engineer

A subsidy will be needed to provide the five cent an hour type of off-street parking needed in Cumberland, Edmund T. Keenan, New York engineer, reported here yesterday.

Keenan recommended, at a meeting with city officials and citizens interested in the parking problem here, that no money be spent on a parking survey until agreement is reached, at least in principle, on the subsidy issue.

Pending action on some type of parking authority, he urged rapid turnover of existing parking meter spaces and the installation of signs directing shoppers to existing parking lots.

Keenan, representing the firm of Parsons, Brickerhoff, Hall and MacDonald, said the urgent need here is for parking space for shoppers and for short-time parking, since the city is competing with neighboring communities for business.

The city, he added, would benefit from parking at rates of not more than five cents an hour.

Land Is Costly

But the income from that type of facility, located where it would do good, would require a subsidy, since land for a five cent an hour center in the downtown area is not available.

He said the subsidy would have to be provided by the city or the merchants, adding in many communities, the cost is borne by the city.

Until some agreement is reached on a subsidy, Keenan said he would not recommend that money be spent for a parking survey, since he did not think a revenue bond issue could be obtained without a subsidy.

His principal recommendations called for five cents an hour parking—limited to two hours—on city-operated meters, with rigid enforcement of existing parking regulations. Parking lots, he added, should take care of all parking for longer periods.

Must Be Enforced

He emphasized that any subsidized parking facilities should be maintained only for those who bring business into the city.

Rules for the use of existing parking meters, he said, should be enforced strictly, through fines large enough to discourage overtime parking, and additional ordinances should be passed for enforcement, if necessary.

Signs should be erected pointing to the Park and Shop parking lots, he added.

And the "feeding of nickels" into meters to allow up to all-day parking on one spot should be eliminated, he said.

The engineer commented that some cities which subsidize shopping centers use funds collected in parking meters to meet deficits from the parking facilities.

Space Is Lacking

That Cumberland does not have enough parking spaces available was disclosed yesterday morning when Keenan, Mayor Roy W. Eves and City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum conducted a parking survey in the downtown area.

There are spaces for 513 cars in 11 parking lots in the downtown area, Nuzum reported, plus another 295 city-operated parking meters. Total meters in the city are 401.

For cities of the 25,000 to 50,000 population range, Cumberland, according to national averages, should have 41 curb parking meters for every 1,000 citizens. The city average is eight.

In off-street parking spaces, the city has 14 spaces per 1,000 persons while the national average is 25. Keenan's firm does engineering surveys and plans parking facilities and is often employed by banking firms interested in financing the projects.

No action was taken at the meeting called to secure additional facts on off-street parking.

Looking on are Leroy Hare, who received honorable mention, and Barbara Campbell, who placed second in Fort Hill's elimination for the finals. The Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce is sponsoring the contest.

24th Yearly Hi-Y Conference Begins Friday

Held This Season At U. Of Delaware

The 24th annual Hi-Y Conference will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the University of Delaware, Newark, Del., Ralph L. Lewis, program secretary of Central YMCA, said last night.

The three-day affair will get under way at 5 p. m. at the university and will run until noon Sunday. Twenty-four area club members will attend, leaving Friday morning by chartered bus.

The group will pick up an additional 10 members from Hagers-town on the way to Delaware, he continued. Hi-Y students from Fort Hill, Allegany and Bruce High of Westernport are planning the trip. Quay Principal Speaker

The principal speaker for the occasion will be Dr. James K. Quay, vice president of Princeton Seminary, and former YMCA secretary of Cairo, Egypt.

The principal part of the Hi-Y program will consist of discussion groups, visits and interviews with Wilmington, Del., industrialists, plus tours of duPont and Chrysler production plants in Wilmington.

Saturday afternoon the visiting delegates will have the use of the university gymnasium and swimming pool, Lewis noted, and the big social affair Saturday night will be the Hi-Y Conference dance. Visiting delegations will be housed in the homes of Newark members.

Local delegates have been selected to several groups in the conference which will attend lectures and participate in the general activities.

Gerald Arthur, president of Fort Hill Hi-Y club is a member of the conference council; Carl Slemmer, secretary of Allegany Hi-Y group, has been chosen for the evaluation committee; and John Chisholm, member of the Fort Hill Sentinel staff, is on the news commission.

Bernard Beerman, vice-president of the Cumberland Tri-Hi-Y Council, will preside over the dinner meeting Saturday evening preceding the dance.

Planned Each Year

The conference is planned each year by a committee of YMCA secretaries and boys clubs chaired by Norman F. Ford, committee secretary of the Wilmington YMCA.

This weekend trip is in keeping with the new practice of taking Hi-Y members to college campuses which was begun two years ago, Lewis pointed out, when the group first went to American University, Washington. Last year the Hi-Y Conference was held at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

Six Schools Name Entrants For 'Democracy' Contest

Six of the 15 public and Catholic high schools in Allegany County have selected their representatives for the annual "I Speak For Democracy" contest sponsored by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce.

School representatives announced by Benjamin H. Sands, committee chairman, include Mary Hafer, Fort Hill; Mary K. Poland, Bruce High, Westernport; Carol Thompson, Central High, Lonaconing; Patricia Henry, Beall High, Frostburg; Janet Pisaneschi, St. Mary's High, and Douglas Houck, who is representing Allegany High for the second time.

The 15 entrants in the county-wide contest will record their five-minute speeches Saturday at WDKY and they will be judged Sunday, beginning at 2:30 p. m. The judges are Horace P. Whitworth Jr., Westernport, member of the House of Delegates; Ralph E. Kessler, this city, supervisor of special education in the Allegany County public school system, and Mrs. Edward J. Ryan, Frostburg, active club woman.

Speeches will be designated only by number so that the judges will not know whose talks they are judging. Those with the four best speeches will receive individual trophies. The school represented by the winner also will get a new cup, which will be retired when a school wins the contest for three years. Fort Hill retired the first cup last year.

The local winner will enter the state contest against victors from other parts of Maryland. The state finals will be held in Cumberland some time in January.

Recess Called In Gas Hearing

BALTIMORE —(P)—The Public Service Commission has not yet set a date for the resumption of its hearing into the application of the Cumberland and Allegany Gas Co. for higher rates in Maryland's two westernmost counties.

The company completed its arguments for the increase last Friday. Opponents and the Peoples Counsel of the commission were given a recess in order to prepare the cross-examination of the company's witnesses.

A commission spokesman said the date for a resumption might be set this week.

The company is asking rate boosts averaging 38 per cent. Customers who heat with gas would bear a large portion of the increase. The company estimated monthly bills of 58 per cent of the customers would go up 50 cents to $1.55.

The City of Cumberland and the Allegany County commissioners are opposing the increase.

Life Underwriters To Meet Friday

The Cumberland Life Underwriters Association will hold its regular monthly membership meeting Friday at 12 noon in Central YMCA.

Guest speaker will be C. William Gilchrist, local attorney, who will talk on "What Constitutes A Life Insurance Contract."

Members are urged to attend and to call Thurmond Cassell not later than today to make reservations.

Democrat Mahoney—Contributions, totaling $36,850, expenditures of $36,831.44, leaving an unexpended balance of $18.56 with no unpaid bills.

Republican Beall—Contributions totaling $43,349, expenditures of $42,221, with the surplus cancelled by an unpaid $1,200 bill.

Contributions to Mahoney's campaign fund included $3,000 from Sam Elg, Silver Spring; $2,000 from Victor Frenkel; $1,500 from William L. Houston, and $1,000 each from the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, Herbert R. O'Connor Jr., John E. L'Veck and Edward P. Morgan.

Contributors to Beall's campaign fund included the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, which gave $5,000; the Republican Finance Committee of Maryland, $3,500; E. L. Cord of Los Angeles and H. L. Hunt of Dallas, Tex., $3,000 each and Douglas B. Marshall of Houston, Texas, $2,500.

State Board Backs Teacher Pay Increase

Recommends $600 Boost By Fall 1955

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25. —The State Board of Education today endorsed the report of a special commission which recommended a $600 boost by the fall of 1955 in Maryland's minimum pay for school teachers.

At the same time, it said the commission had not kept the record straight about the board's past efforts to raise the pay of teachers. The commission had criticized the state for lagging behind on teacher pay.

Favored Move In 1950

The board pointed out that as far back as Nov. 30, 1950, it had gone on record in favor of boosting the minimums by $500.

In its resolution, the board approved the commission's intricate program for instituting and financing the raises.

A $300 increase in the minimums for the 1953-54 and 1954-55 school years would be financed largely by the state. The second $300 advance the next year would be financed jointly by the state and local governments with a revision of the complicated equalization formula the state already uses.

The initial increase, if it is adopted by the General Assembly at its session starting in January, will not help some teachers because all the counties already are paying at least $200 more than the present minimums of $2,200. Many older teachers will benefit, however, because the commission proposed stepping up the yearly length-of-service increase from $100 to $200 a year after the third year of teaching.

Need Less Help

The Board of Education took the unusual step today of trimming about $400,000 from its school budget. (Continued on Page 11, Col. 4)

Beverly Wilson To Be Crowned As Camper Queen

Beverly Wilson, a pretty blonde senior, will be crowned as Camper Queen during the pep meeting at Allegany High School shortly after noon today.

Elected by the Allegany football players, Miss Wilson will be crowned by Coach Roy Lester. Her attendants for the Thanksgiving ceremonies will be Mary Wagner, senior; Joan Bastian, junior; Nancy Duncan, sophomore, and Joan Wilt, freshman.

The cheerleaders have designated Beverly Price, a 15-year-old sophomore, to serve as their mascot Thursday. She will be dressed as an Indian and stay in a tent at the game tomorrow with Fort Hill.

Shaffer added prizes will be awarded for the best-lighted homes, gardens, doorways or windows. Prizes and names of judges will be announced later.

Route of the territory to be judged by the Jaycees is Cumberland, LaVale to the Six-Mile House, Bedford Street to Nave's Crossroads, Oldtown Road to the City limits, McMullan Highway to include Cresaptown, Winchester and Braddock roads.

Shaffer said hand-out literature containing decoration ideas and designs may be obtained at the Potomac Edison Company, Liberty Street.

Chest Drive Hits $92,243, Is Extended

Leaders Expect To Meet Quota

The Cumberland Community Chest campaign fell approximately $10,000 short of its $105,977.76 goal at the scheduled final report meeting last night, but leaders extended the drive and estimated returns in the next few days will send the total over the top.

The total to date is $92,243, as reported at a dinner meeting last night in Central YMCA.

William H. Buchholtz, campaign chairman, said unfavorable weather and other conflicts have set the campaign back, but added the drive will be extended to next Wednesday.

He said that from all indications, the campaign should be oversubscribed early next week if residents cooperate with solicitors.

Commend Workers

The campaign leader last night commended leaders and workers for the splendid job they are doing. Many of the zones and sections "went over the top" of their group goals, and all leaders quoted additional returns they expect within a few days.

In his talk last night, Buchholtz told workers that the Community Chest goal must be met, and said there are many families in Cumberland who are in need of the aid given by the Chest agencies.

He added that residents should remember tomorrow, after they have enjoyed their Thanksgiving dinner, the other families who are too poor to afford an elaborate feast. Only the help given by the Chest can make Cumberland a happy place for the unfortunate ones.

In last night's report the residential section was close to its goal of $5,500 with $5,300 reported. Zone leaders of the residential section, headed by Mrs. Wilbur Hudson, reported:

Zone 1, led by Mrs. Arthur Fuller, with a goal of $390, last night had $332; Zone 2, Mrs. Charles Hornbrook, oversubscribed goal of $450 with a return of $546.

Zone 3, Mrs. J. S. Minne, goal of $375, went over with $408; Zone 4, Mrs. Elizabeth Nave, went over goal of $635 with $667; Zone 5, Mrs. Frank Kaplan, goal of $470, reported $451; Zone 6, Mrs. Edward Mulan, goal of $830, had $714.

Zone 7, Mrs. Frederic Eiler, goal of $1,325, went over top with $1,369; Zone 8, Mrs. R. Isminger, met its goal of $200; Zone 9, Mrs. E. L. Houshelli, with goal of $200, reported $94, and Zone 10, Mrs. Stanley Buckley, also came near its goal.

Meetings Set

The Sales Army section, headed by Earl D. Chaney, last night reported a total of $5,474, not far from its goal of $7,000.

In this section, Group J, headed by John L. Conway, reported $831. It has a goal of $1,450. Group K, Henry K. Duke, goal of $1,900, reported $1,354; Group L, Donald W. Mason, goal of $2,050, reported $1,263, and Group M, Woodward Pealer, goal of $2,300, had $2,026.

The Classified Section headed by Edward L. Ewald, which has a goal of $35,000, last night reported $25,424, and the Advance Girls section, led by Miles G. Thompson and Frederic W. Eiler, was commended for topping its goal of $56,000 with a report of $56,043.

A meeting will be held Monday at noon in Central YMCA, according to Buchholtz, and if at that time the Chest goal is not reached, another meeting will be held Wednesday at the same time.

Board Receives Central High Locker Bids

Two local firms yesterday submitted bids to the Allegany County Board of Education for lockers for the new Central High School near Lonaconing but only one of the proposals involved all the lockers needed.

The Ankeny Company, 27 North Centre Street, submitted a unit bid of $17.25 for each of the
